WIFE ESTRANGED; WANTS $20,000

Lloyd Man, Reluctantly Wed After Alleged Seduction, Now Values Wife's Affections Highly In Suit Against Her Parents.

Eldorous Brown who resides at Bailey's Gap in the town of Lloyd has brought an action in supreme court to recover $20,000 for alienation of his wife's affections. Plaintiff claims that his father-in-law and mother-in-law used their influence to prevent his wife from coming to a home he was preparing for his wife and as a result he seeks damages from Fred Perkins and his wife who also reside at Bailey's Gap. Mr. Strongman of Strongman & Ward with DuBois Gillette appear for plaintiff and A. D. and A. W. Lent with John Mack appear for defendant.

On December 28, 1921, Hazel Perkins and Eldorous Brown were married and went to the home of Hazel to reside where plaintiff was to work on his father-in-law's farm. Plaintiff on the stand testified that he went to work and was kept busy skinning horses and cows and burying dead pigs. Beside this he claims that abusive language was used to him and that life in general was made unbearable. He sought to fix up a home for his wife and along in February had fixed up a house with the exception of a stove but that on account of the influence of her folks she refused to come and live there. The matter of securing a stove was thought of and a visit was made to the village dealer but as there were no cheap stoves on hand they decided to wait for a day or two when a larger assortment of stoves was to be received. While the house was being repaired for plaintiff and his wife they resided at the home of plaintiff's sister after leaving the Perkins house.

At one stage of the affairs Brown claims that his wife received a note from her parents saying that her mother was ill and asking her to come home. When they arrived they found Mrs. Perkins well. One time when he went to the Perkins home he claims he was met at the door by Mrs Perkins who shook her fist under his nose and told him her daughter could not return to him. Hazel also said she would never return to him.

The defendants claims that they never influenced their daughter to leave her husband but that he, after he had married her, left. Defendants claim that Brown seduced Hazel Perkins on a promise to marry and later refused to marry her. He was arrested and indicted by the grand jury and after he had been indicted by that body he agreed to marry and did marry the daughter. Defendants also claim that Brown, after the marriage, accused his wife of misconduct with another resident of the town of Lloyd and that after the marriage he told her that this man and not he was the father of her child.

Plaintiff testified on the stand that Hazel had told him that she had been wronged by this other man but asked him to marry her and he finally agreed to do so after he had been indicted by the grand jury.

Throughout his examination by counsel he referred to Mr. Perkins as "the old man." He testified that he had known his wife all his life but that he had not gone out with her until July 17, 1921 and on December 28, 1921 they were married. He had agreed to marry her but when he found she had been out with someone else he "backed out" but later agreed to marry her.

During the proceeding several notes were written by both plaintiff and his wife. The notes, asking her to return and one in which she refused to come, were introduced in evidence.

The case was continued this afternoon

WILLIE HAS BAD COLD; WILLIAM VERY NERVOUS

By Telegraph to The Freeman

Amsterdam, Oct. 18.—The illness of the former German crown prince is due to a sprained foot and to a severe cold, it was learned from Wieringen today. He was injured in a motorcycle accident. His injuries are not serious enough to keep him from his father's marriage early next month at Doorn, unless unexpected complications develop.

The ex-Kaiser is suffering a slight attack of influenza which has aggravated his nervousness.

TWO LOOM AS RESERVE GOVERNOR

Edmund Platt or D. R. Crissinger Picked To Succeed Harding—"Dirt Farmer" For Reserve Board.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Oct. 18.—President Harding has finally decided not to reappoint William P. G. Harding as governor of the Federal Reserve Board, it was learned today from administration sources.

With Governor Harding eliminated from further consideration, the president was reported facing a new row over the naming of his successor. A strong following within the administration ranks, it was learned, has urged the appointment of a Democrat to succeed Governor Harding, who went into office as an Alabama Democrat under former President Wilson. The naming of a Democrat would halt all charges that politics actuated the removal of Governor Harding.

The two men reported "most acceptable" to all conflicting interests and who are said to find favor with President Harding are Edmund Platt of New York, present vice-governor of the board and D. R. Crissinger of Ohio, the comptroller of the currency. Crissinger was said to have the "inside track" because of his former political affiliations with the Democratic party.

The president's decision to drop Governor Harding and the name of his successor, will be made public as soon as congress reconvenes in November, it was said. The nomination of either Crissinger or Platt is not expected to meet with opposition in the senate where both men enjoy a host of friendships.

The dropping of Governor Harding will represent a victory for American farm organizations over banking interests. Opposition to Governor Harding's rule of the government's financial system and protests against his reappointment began as soon as President Harding came into office, coming principally from agricultural sources.

Besides the naming of a new chairman, the president also has under consideration the apointment of a "dirt farmer" to the board. The leading candidates for this post are James R. Howard, president of the American farm bureau federation; Milo D. Campbell of Coldwater, Mich., president of the National Milk Producers' Federation, and N. A. Shaw of Texarkana, Texas, a farm expert.

FIRST SNOW IN THE ADIRONDACKS

By Telegraph to The Freeman

Saranac Lake, N. Y., Oct. 18.—The first snow of the season fell here today

Glens Falls, N. Y., Oct. 18.—The winter season in the Adirondacks opened today, a light flurry of snow having fallen nearly all night in towns north of this city. At Newcomb and Indian Lake, snow fell to a depth of two inches and at North Creek and Schroon Lake, the hillsides were white this morning.

Syracuse, N. Y., Oct 18.—Snow made its appearance in this city about 1 o'clock this afternoon.

LOADING OF ALL COMMODITIES SAVE COAL AT RECORD LEVEL

Loading of all commodities, except coal, for the week ended September 30th was 809,032 cars, which was the heaviest loading (excluding coal) of any week in the history of the railroads, their Executives' Association reports.

The loading of coal was 189,349 cars—or only about 10 per cent less than in the corresponding week of 1920, in which year coal loadings were the heaviest on record, and in which there were no coal miners' or shopmens' strikes, immediately preceding the heavy autumn traffic.

$6,000 AWARD FOR DEATH OF CHASE

Killed in U. & D. Wreck at Grand Gorge Last May—Argument on Motion to Set Aside Verdict to Follow.

The October trial term of the supreme court in Delaware county opened at Delhi on Monday last, Justice Theodore P. Tuthill, of Binghamton, presiding. The trial of the action of Ora Tryon, as administratrix of Floyd Chase, deceased, for $75,000 against the Ulster and Delaware railroad was commenced on Monday afternoon. This action grows out of a collision between a coal train and a work train near Grand Gorge on May 26th last, in which Chase was killed. After the evidence had been submitted two questions were left to the jury to decide, first as to whether the railroad was negligent; second if they found the railroad was negligent the amount of damages.

The jury returned a verdict finding the railroad had been negligent and awarding damages to the plaintiff in the sum of $6,000.

A motion was made by the counsel for the railroad to set aside the verdict and argument upon the same will be heard before Judge Tuthill at his chambers in Binghamton at a later date, at which time the question as to whether or not the plaintiff was engaged in interstate or intrastate commerce at the time of his death will be determined. If plaintiff was engaged in intrastate commerce at the time of his death the provisions of the Workman's Compensation Law of this state will apply and the action cannot be maintained, if it was engaged in interstate commerce the provisions of the Federal Employers Liability act apply.

Joseph A. Shay of New York city was counsel for the plaintiff and Harry H. Flemming of this city for the defendants.

HORNELL REPUBLICANS GREET GOVERNOR MILLER.

SMITH ASKS HOW ABOUT TARIFF AND INJUNCTION.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Watertown, N. Y., Oct. 18.—Alfred E. Smith, Democratic candidate for governor, will speak here tonight in his campaign tour of the state. At Ogdensburg last night, the former governor replied to Governor Miller's speech at Binghamton Monday night, in which the executive praised the Harding administration.

"How does Governor Miller feel on government by injunction?" Smith asked. "Does he believe in the kind of government typified by the Daugherty injunction, one of the acts of his own party?

"And what does he really think of the tariff act just passed by his party, reaching into the pockets of the housewife to give special advantage to the privileged few? Let him tell the voters of his own state now."

WOODSTOCK ARTIST FINED $10 FOR INTOXICATION

William McGrady, a member of the artists' colony at Woodstock, inflamed by hooch or something akin to it, was arrested by Officer John Lavelle, of Saugerties, Monday evening. McGrady was bareheaded and clad in knickers. He was creating a rumpus near Dr. C. L. Gannon's house, Glasco, and before being placed under arrest gave the officer a lively tussle. The officer took his man to the lockup for the night and Tuesday morning, McGrady, repentant, paid Police Justice H. D. Abeel $10 for his escapade. The charge against him was public intoxication and disorderly conduct.

Ford Sends Car Down Bank.

A Ford car, owner and driver unknown, ran into the Studebaker car owned by Frank Soura of Saugerties near Glenerie Sunday evening and the latter car was swung from the road and went through the railing and down the embankment landing against some brush which impeded its further progress and brought it to a stop. The Ford car proceeded northward never stopping to see what had happened. The Studebaker was greatly damaged.

MILLS MISSIVES OF BURNING LOVE

Six Letters of Choir Singer to Rector Hall Shows Their Clandestine Affair Overshadowed All Else In Her Life.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New Brunswick, N. J., Oct. 18.—Another amazing chapter in the tempestuous love tragedy of Rector Hall and Mrs. Mills was made public today in the form of six additional letters written to the clergyman to his "wonder heart" choir singer.

The letters follow:

"Dearest, dearest boy: Wasn't I happy to find a sweet note, for I didn't expect that you would risk leaving one for me yesterday. Such delicious eclairs!

"And the book is more interesting than you tho't it would be. After I read it, we will talk about it.

"My darling, how will you seem today? I must have caught cold but I don't know when and I am tired today—want to lie with you and rest for hours.

"And Honey, you put the dear picture in my Hymn book. Oh, you sweet, adorable babykins of mine! Minnie used my Hymnal for the organ and I wonder if she saw them, although I don't care one bit. She provokes me so at times and tonight if her flowers are still here, I'll put them in the kitchen. Not that I am jealous of Minnie Why, Darling, there isn't anything to be jealous of. But I hate her to do for you what I thought of first. She couldn't swear I put the flowers on your desk—she surmised it was I. Oh, well, poor Minnie. She is easily contended with crumbs, isn't she Dear?

"How are you tonight, Darling? You seemed rested and happy We didn't have a minute alone but it will appear so at times.

"Dearest I am not dreaming today. As I look out of the window I form no thought in my mind—just a drifting on, staring at nothing in particular, and I always do that when I am tired. The note I left yesterday was crumpled, but I have to hide it in my small orange purse, as I met him. And please excuse hastiness in writing sometimes, as I cannot be alone always. How glad I am school resumes sessions tomorrow and I can be alone to write! I could never belong to a club or go where there is incessant laughter and conversation. I need my dream times, my hours alone and other people irritate and disturb me.

"There isn't much of interest in the papers today. One line in an article says 'All life is a hunger,' and how true that is. A hunger for what will satisfy but what a variety of tastes in people. And because you and I hunger for the same things is the reason for our longing to be together as much as possible

"My love is deep, calm, quiet today. I am in the mood to listen to music.

"Yesterday I was talking to Mrs. Burns. Couldn't pass and not listen, as she was ready for conversation. She was saying someone next to Hopkins' was married yesterday and they were queer people. Told Mrs. Hopkins they live in a different world that some people. Mrs. Burns is too ignorant to understand that, of course, and my! I wish you heard what disrespectful language Mrs B. used. But I let her rave. I hate to talk to Mrs. Burns and never do it if I can avoid it, but at times it must be polite even if it is to listen to her ignorance.

"And Honey mine—isn't it true I live in a different world? Today I am not wide awake. I am not sad—but quiet. Yesterday I was rollicking. Oh, I love those moods they mean intense life fire.

"Of course dear, the people who live next to Hopkins' really meant that they have different aims, conversation, intellect, than some people, but the Burns' don't understand that. What are the Burns? Ignorance that screeches, the very air is painted with their warped minds.

"Oh, Darling, if I had an income of my own, I would be very selfish, I guess, I'd build a waiting love nest where I could dream unmolested and not care if I ever saw people to talk to. Books and music, pictures. Oh, what treasures I would have!

"The birds, the butterflies, the wild squirrels and all that I could see in the woods and fields and sky in my dreams. People would mean nothing. I'd rather watch the bugs and ants as they crawl along—don't you love to watch an ant as it creeps along. Honey, there isn't a home large enough for me. My dreams are as big as the earth. I need the great outdoors—to breathe—live in. Nature as God created it, it what I feel a part of and I am a part of it—it calls me just as I yearn for the truest things. And Darling Sweetheart—that is why I long for our love to be the truest—ideal—as pure as we can make it—for then it is truest to nature and things that God created.

"But this love nest, you know, Dearie, is dreadfully lonesome with just me there. Did He say we needed jewels? Did He say we needed anything except the mate. After that He knows we would find other things that He created for our comfort and pleasure. What a joy to read the Bible, how it tells of God creating all wonders for us.

"Darling I could rave for hours—but I must stop as there are people around. I only know this, dear, that as God the creator is real, true, nature is real—true, so our love is the most vital power the truest joy that can be known in this life and hereafter. Please don't laugh at this, I know I'm a crazy cat but I can't be different.

"Charlotte talks—then Don asks questions, then he annoys, so how can I write?"

This ends letter number one—unaddressed and unsigned.

"Darling Mine, didn't you feel me purring—blissfully contented? And close to you, too. Was my goodbyes to the others too hasty and should I have said more? What a truly unexpected pleasure it was, dearest, sweetest boy. Oh, how good you are. As I rode along I thought this is where I find my greatest joy to be near my man, what care I for what other people call pleasure, to be near you, although I didn't dare look at my noble boy's face, this is all I ask.

"How friendly our Easton avenue road seems to us and dear, dearest boy, every time you take your hat off I never fail to notice and read your face. Monday, too. And it is a new message of love every time you do and my heart sings for joy; yes and I could fling my arms about you and pour kisses on my Babykin's head and face.

"Grandma is here. I must stop, Sweetheart, my true heart. I could crush you. Oh, I am wild tonight, so happy I could dance wildly."

End of letter No. 2. Number three follows:

"I don't know why I feel this way today—it will pass as you know. God, I know. Oh, I know that as much as I know you are my true heart and that He is watching and caring and we are never alone, He is always near—in whatever we do, even in physical closeness. He is near for we know He meant His children to taste deeply of All things.

"Was Pam religious? Did she feel God? Chris was Cecile's mate no more than you. The Chris she thought he was, he was her true mate.

"I am the Resurrection and the Life—and if he knew that, then there would be no Paneless for him but a prayerful life—a desire to be like his always forever beloved Cecile.

"Ask me any part of the book and I will remember it. Paul's mother was English (page 49). I have much work I ought to do but I can't today. I must wait until this mood passes and I come down to earth again. Do I love you too much? I know that now I could leave, yes, even your physical presence and go into a convent. You are always in my mind and heart but then I wouldn't see anyone else touch you, call you 'Dear,' rub your tired body, sew your torn trousers.

"Oh, Darling, I don't ever want to call you 'Dear' or 'Honey' if anyone else can. Aren't you glad that none but you call me dear names?

"One time I told you I hated your work, I hated your parish. I guess it is because I am jealous of it, because it must always come first in your life. Not because of conventions—no—but because you love it so. When the man at the gate at Manhattan Beach called you 'Doctor' and I, without looking at you (I'm a witch), knew it thrilled you, the kind of a thrill that brings tears of joy to your eyes.

"Oh, I know you because you are a true priest—born for it. And because that is your supreme joy and satisfaction. I am merely your physical inspiration and you see in me what you teach, you the priest."

Note: The names mentioned in this letter are from Robert Keable's book, "The Mother of All Living."

"I don't want to stay for service. I haven't unlocked the doors as I was asked to and kept my word. But it seems as though I am unworthy to do other things I was asked.

"Of course it has hurt me. Perhaps again I don't understand—you have had time to do them. Well, it doesn't matter one bit what comes. I had a simple greeting but did not leave it. I cannot stay to such a service when our hearts are bitter. But since it is a duty of the church, I think the truest way is to forget all about yourself and do what the church bids forgetting everything but that you are the priest."

"How impatient I am and will be. I want to look up into your dear face for hours as you touch my body close. Honey, do you suppose we could start early in the morning and not return until the following night late—say ten or eleven?

"Darling, do you yearn for it as I do?

"When will it be, Dear, the last of this month?

"I guess I'd better not leave this, but give it to you tomorrow. I am

TEST TOMORROW FOR LLOYD GEORGE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, Oct. 18.—Both wings of the Tory party were busy recruiting their full strength today in preparation for the struggle which will come tomorrow when the members vote whether to support the coalition government of Lloyd-George or withdraw. Austen Chamberlain, a Tory and government spokesman in the House of Commons, has asked the party to support the premier. If the vote goes against Mr. Chamberlain's suggestion tomorrow, it will be tantamount to withdrawal of the Unionists from the coalition government.

It was reported during the afternoon that the "coalitionists"—that is those supporting the Lloyd-George ministry—were gaining strength.

Premier Lloyd-George has already informed the Tory members of the government that if Mr. Chamberlain is voted down at the Unionist meeting tomorrow, he will quit. A number of Unionist officials in the government, mostly under secretaries, have announced their intention of resigning regardless of the outcome of Thursday's vote.

Sir Robert Sanders, under-secretary for war, already has tendered his resignation.

VERDICT IS FOR MRS. PFROMMER

Jury Decides That Transfer of Her Share of Brewster Street Property to Husband Was Procured Through His Fraudulent Declaration.

Joseph F. Pfrommer, continuing his testimony in the suit brought against him by his wife, Anna C. Pfrommer, to set aside a deed, in the trial term of the supreme court Tuesday afternoon, stated his wife added from time to time admissions of meeting with Marshall, without admitting anything criminal. She was hysterical at times and begged him to forgive and overlook her acts, none of which were ground for a divorce. All this was prior to March 9, when the deed was executed. From March 9 to May 26 he continued to live with his family. Mrs. Pfrommer asked him to discharge his lawyer and detectives—asked it a dozen times a day. He had not had any detectives. On May 25, the summons in this action was served.

On May 25, while alone home, witness examined his wife's room and found an envelope, a photograph of Marshall and several letters in the bottom of a trunk.

Cross-examined by Mr. Brinnier: Had known Marshall seven years. Marshall had been at his house three or four or five times. Marshall brough whiskey about three times. Did not ask my wife to drink, she asked me. She drank, more than I did.

The letters found by Pfrommer were then read by Mr. Flanagan to the jury. They were from Marshall, addressed to Mrs Pfrommer and were slushy in the extreme, reminiscent of conduct on which actions for divorce are maintained in this state. Expurgated copies have been printed.

Pfrommer said he never choked his wife or threatened to kill her. Once, under great provocation, he slapped her face, but not heavily. Never applied epithets to her, but she called him names many times. Never requested her to sell her diamond.

Cross-examined by Mr. Brinnier, Pfrommer contradicted the testimony of his sons that he had knocked his wife down and applied epithets to her Once, at request of his wife, he carried Mrs. Ingles (previously referred to as "Jerry") in the house. No, he didn't squeeze her—he just carried her. He drank wine with her, and his wife, several times. Marshall did not make the insulting remark testified to by Mrs. Pfrommer.

Greatly to the disappointment of the large congregation of spectators, defendant rested and the evidence was closed without the calling or otherwise identifying of Mr. Marshall, who was present in the court room during a portion of the trial.

Before counsel addressed the jury, Judge Staley stated that the question for the jury to answer would be:

Was the deed executed by Anna C. Pfrommer to Joseph F. Pfrommer induced by a fradulent declaration of intention by the defendant?

The case was presented to the jury by Mr. Brooks for the defendant and by Mr. Brinnier for the plaintiff.

This morning the jury returned a sealed verdict in which they answered "yes" to the question submitted.

THE LAST GOLDEN ROD

"Hello, Mr. Wind," said Miss Golden Rod. "I am the last Golden Rod flower of the season, I think."

"I believe you are," said Mr. Wind. "It is very late in the fall for any of the members of your family to be about. Very, very late.

"But it is nice to see you. I am ever so fond of your family, Golden Rod.

"I think you're one of the nicest of all the nice flower families."

"How kind you are, Mr. Wind, and I can tell you. I do appreciate your kind words."

"I mean them. I mean them," said Mr. Wind decidedly. And the leaves and grass and even Miss Golden Rod herself nodded and said:

"Mr. Wind means what he says."

"I've been hearing of the Fleur-de-lis which is the national flower of France," said Mr. Wind. "You know it is the Iris flower.

"It used to be called Fleur-de-Louis, meaning the flower of Louis, who was one of their rulers in the olden days. A fleur is the same as a flower—it is the French word for flower.

"There is quite a story about it, and as I know you like to hear about flowers, I will tell you this story."

"Do," said Miss Golden Rod.

"Iris," said Mr. Wind, "was a messenger of the old Greek gods. They had a birthday party to which all the flowers were invited, and three sisters came beautifully gowned in purple, yellow and red. Their colors were the colors of the rainbow, and the rainbow was dedicated to Iris.

"Oh yes, there are many, many stories of Iris! The flower has been much used in Egyptian carvings, and, too, it has been used for perfumes and oils.

"I Was Laughing About Something."

"It is said that a powder made from its roots was part of a mixture used for broken bones!

"And another story about it is that it was supposed to be good for bites from snakes!

"But, though the Iris or Fleur-de-lis has so many stories about her, I am fonder of our own lovely Golden Rod."

"How happy that makes me," said Miss Golden Rod.

"I am very devoted to the country here. That is why I cannot bear to leave.

"I should have gone some time ago, but I just couldn't go. My flower trunk was packed and ready to give to the Flower Expressman who would scatter the seeds about, but I couldn't bear to leave, as I told you.

"But, Mr. Wind, you are laughing. Pray tell me why you are laughing? Have I said anything funny?"

"No," said Mr. Wind. "I was laughing about something funny that I heard today.

"Someone said how helpful I was in drying the clothes that were out on the line.

"'Yes,' someone said, 'the Wind is very helpful. He is a fine dry wind, and he is just making the clothes dry in no time at all. He is such a help.'

"Then someone else said:

"'I really don't know what I would do if it weren't for the Wind to help me with my washing. He doesn't exactly help with the washing itself, but the washing is finished much sooner because he helps with the drying.

"'Oh, I really do not know what I would do without Mr. Wind. I do not know at all.'

"And then someone else said:

"'I can't see how Mr. Wind is so much of a help in the washing and drying. He hasn't any hands. How can he help wash and dry clothes?'

"Well, I laughed then and I laugh now to think of myself with hands. Fancy the wind blowing about with a pair of hands to look after.

"It is so ridiculous. It did make me laugh.

"But the first two who had spoken explained to the third person (who very evidently knew absolutely nothing about washing and drying) what a help I was. Blowing and drying without hands. And now I must be about my work, but how glad I am to have seen you again, dear, bright Miss Golden Rod."

And Miss Golden Rod smiled brightly and happily.

A FEW SALADS AND DESSERTS

The eating of vegetables in every form is a habit to be cultivated and with a nicely-seasoned salad dressing, the habit is a good one, easily acquired.

Cucumber Jelly Salad.—Dissolve one tablespoonful of gelatin in one and one-fourth cupfuls of water, add one-fourth of a cupful of vinegar, one-fourth of a cupful of sugar, one teaspoonful of salt and a dash of paprika. Let the mixture stand until it begins to thicken, add one cupful of diced cucumber, one-fourth of a cupful of green pepper and one teaspoonful of onion juice. Turn the mixture into molds, chill and serve on lettuce with mayonnaise dressing.

Beet Celery and Pea Salad.—Take two cupfuls of diced, cooked beets, one cupful of finely cut celery, one cupful of cooked peas drained, one tablespoonful of minced onion, one tablespoonful of horseradish sauce, salt and paprika. Marinate the vegetables with French dressing and let them stand for two hours. Serve on lettuce with a boiled dressing or with mayonnaise.

Rice and Pea Salad.—Fill small greased molds half full of seasoned cooked green peas. Cover with cold boiled rice which has been seasoned with finely minced pimento, parsley and onion juice. Press the rice lightly to fill the mold. Loosen with a spatula and turn out on a salad plate garnished with lettuce or endive. Serve with French or mayonnaise dressing.

Cherry Fluff.—Soak two tablespoonfuls of gelatin in one-fourth of a cupful of water, place over hot water until the gelatin is dissolved. Now add two cupfuls of cherry juice, one-third of a cupful of sugar and stir until the sugar is dissolved. Set aside until the mixture begins to thicken, then beat well and add two-thirds of a cupful of cherries; other fruit may be used. Add three tablespoonfuls of sugar to two-thirds of a cupful of whipped cream and fold lightly into the fruit mixture. Turn into a mold and chill. Serve with soft custard, a fruit sauce, or cream. Garnish with whipped cream and cherries.

The Nation's Destiny.

Our history, sir, has been a constant and expanding miracle from Plymouth Rock and Jamestown all the way—aye, even from the hour when, from the voiceless and trackless ocean, a new world rose to the sight of an inspired sailer. As we approach the fourth centennial of that stupendous day—when the old world will come to marvel and to learn, amid our gathered pleasures—let us resolve to crown the miracles of our past with the spectacle of a republic compact, united, indissoluble in the bonds of love—loving from the Lakes to the Gulf—the wounds of war healed in every heart as on every hill—serene and resplendent at the summit of human achievement and earthly glory—blazing out the path and making clear the way up which all the nations of the earth must come in God's appointed time!—Henry W. Grady.

Figures Produced by Quarter-Sawing.

In some common woods, notably the oaks, a figure is produced by quarter-sawing, says the American Forestry Magazine. In practically all woods there are ribbons of tissue which run at right angles to the axis of the tree like spokes in a wheel. These are the rays, often called medullary, or pith rays, because some of them appear as extensions of the pith into the wood. In all the conifers and most hardwoods these rays are too fine to show distinctly. In others, as in maple, cherry and mahogany, they are distinct, but not conspicuous.

Tommy's Essay on Parents.

Parents are things which boys have to look after them. Most girls also have parents. Parents consist of pas and mas. Pas talk a good deal about what they're going to do, but mostly it's mas that make you mind. Once a boy at boarding school went to calling his pa the governor and got his allowance cut down. His pa said he ought to have waited till he was going to college. I know a boy that hasn't any parents, so he can go in swimming any time he wants to, but all the same I'm going to stick to my parents.

The True Strength.

Enthusiasm is always connected with the senses, whatever be the object that excites it. The true strength of virtue is serenity of mind, combined with a deliberate and steadfast determination to execute her laws. That is the healthful condition of the moral life; on the other hand, enthusiasm, even when excited by representations of goodness, is a brilliant but feverish glow which leaves only exhaustion and languor behind.—Kant.

Oats Differ
Like apples—be careful

Some oats are large and luscious. But a bushel of choice oats yields only ten pounds of such grains.

Those grains alone are used in Mother's Oats. That's the reason for the delightful flavor.

Some oats are small and stunted. They yield insipid flakes. Those oats are all discarded in this brand.

No food you serve to children can compare with oats. There are 16 needed elements in oats—body-builders, vim-producers, minerals, etc. Every pound yields 1810 calories of nutriment.

Oat flakes, above all foods, should be served at their best. You want children to love this dish.

Then be careful. Ask for Mother's Oats, and make sure you get them.

A GOOD RULING AND A BAD.

The decision against the sale of liquor on American ships will be widely approved It belatedly removes the just charge of hypocritical double dealing on the part of a government striving to enforce the Volstead law on land while repudiating that law for profit on our "constructively American territory" at sea. The ruling will be received with jubilation by foreign shipping lines, which will see in it the removal of a formidable rival The foreign passenger liners will now get practically all the business and ours may as well shut up shop, for "dry" passenger liners can not compete with "wet," as trial has already shown The material loss will be great, but it will merely add that much more to the immense loss sustained by the government through the cost of enforcement and the vanished revenue from the tax on the manufacture and sale of liquor.

The further ruling in regard to foreign vessels in American ports is likely to cause widespread amazement rather than general approval, and if put in force it must inevitably result in serious international complications We have nothing whatever to do with the liquor on board foreign ships in our ports, provided there is no attempt to unload it on our shores and it is reserved for the consumption of those on board. We are no more concerned than we are with the liquor that is consumed in London or Paris For the foreign ships that come to us are "constructively foreign territory" in precisely the same sense that our ships going to sea and into foreign ports are 'constructively American territory" Our government might as well attempt to enforce prohibition on the high seas, forcibly boarding and searching every foreign vessel afloat.

FINGER-PRINTING.

The finger-printing of every person in the United States, citizens as well as aliens, is recommended by the executive committee of the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York The committee reports that such universal finger-printing would be a protective measure of great value, not only in the identification of criminals and the detection of election frauds but in the checking of dangerous aliens sent over here to spread discontent. The committee can see "no valid reason upon which any honest man can base objection" to the plan, and even suggests that during "such periods as may be deemed expedient" it would be possible, if the scheme were adopted, to require that each individual carry an identification card with an official check against his thumb-print Others do see reason for objection The New York Times thinks that the finger-print system has been too long associated with evil to win popular favor, notwithstanding the gains unquestionably involved. The New York World invites those who like the plan to submit first, and asks 'Who is there in this state so fond of the former Prussian system of government that he would place himself voluntarily in the position of a criminal on parole?'"

As it appears to us there are two serious objections, the first psychological, due to the association with crime—as of a sort of rogue's gallery procured by finger-print records; the second, more than questionable invasion of individual freedom Even for a good purpose it would be official tyranny to force the public to submit to all the inconvenience, not to say personal humiliation, and become so tied up in red tape although protesting

Governor Miller has given out no more interesting statement than that relating to the development of water power which proves that he is thinking in the interest of the whole people. According to the governor, converting water power now going to waste into light, heat and power will save the people a lot of money because the water will be translated into coal He says the work is also nearer completion than the people imagine

Alfred E. Smith, the Democratic candidate for governor, could be rightly termed the "artful dodger." He is careful not to get into any discussion with Governor Miller relative to the merits of any proposition having to do with the period when Smith was governor as compared with the period since Governor Miller has been the chief executive. Smith is artful in the use of words, and, as to facts, they are something not essential according to Democratic practices. "Al" can waive aside the biggest question without batting an eye and then take up something he thinks appeals to the emotions.

"Women throughout the world will learn of your appointment with the deepest pleasure," wrote Miss Alice Paul when Mrs. Felton of Georgia was made a senator of the United States by Governor Hardwick, a mere man and with all a southerner's chivalric expressions. At about the same time Mrs Belmont ruled that no man should hold office or receive a salary under the National Women's Party. Judging from Senator Felton's conservative utterances, this anti-man attitude will receive none of her sympathy.

Feminists who cry out against sex distinction of any sort stand for it very strongly themselves in some particulars A woman who was rejected for jury duty in a Philadelphia murder case, after she had said she was opposed to capital punishment, took the trouble to explain that she objected to it in the case of women but not in the case of men.

British writers of detective stories have poked no end of fun at Scotland Yard professionals, but it is likely that these were never made to feel so cheap as when recently thieves broke into their lost property office and carried off all the overcoats and umbrellas.

Late warm fall weather called Indian summer is said by an old record to have been so named because the Indians chose such periods for attacks on the white settlements. In the absence of a more convincing explanation, this may serve temporarily.

Free vodka being restored, an effort is being made in Russia to revive grape culture, which almost died out under prohibition Another evidence that the Russian masses are slow of wit Prohibition gave a great boost to grape culture in the United States

2 Do humming birds ever perch?

Probably not while feeding, as they vibrate the wings so rapidly with the aid of the powerful breast muscles, they can hold themselves apparently suspended in front of the blossoms. But parent hummers perch on the nest while feeding the young (by regurgitation), and have been seen occasionally perched on telegraph wires, dead twigs etc' sunning and preening

What are the fungus flat, shell-shaped growths often seen growing on both dead and living trees? Are they harmful?

If you refer to what are called bracket fungi (Polyporaceae) very harmful to forests, even on dead stumps, as their spores are likely to reach wounds on living trees and get a foothold Branches broken off by the wind, gashes from an axe, etc, leave a healthy tree defenceless to these wind-blown spores The spores take root, then send threads penetrating the heart wood, and causing a slow rot, which spreads and spreads.

SAYS FEW ELUDE TAX COLLECTOR

Commissioner Blair Claims System Is Almost Airtight.

BOOTLEGGERS MADE TO PAY

Delinquent Often Betray Others Who Have Not Made Return on Income—Almost $300,000,000 Collected Last Year in Delinquent Income Taxes—Disgruntled Bookkeepers Often Give Valuable Hints—Every Clue Run Down That Promises Revenue.

Uncle Sam now keeps 20,000 persons busy rounding up internal revenue taxes due each year from American taxpayers, says the New York Herald.

In ten years the number of taxpayers has grown from 600,000 to 9,000,000, largely because of the income tax law.

Upward of 5,000,000 personal tax returns filed with the internal revenue bureau each year set forth taxpayers' obligations to the federal government. Income taxes last year represented three-fourths of the $4,000,000,000 collected by the nation's revenue force.

The government believes it has an airtight system to insure payment of all tax liability of its citizens. Revenue Commissioner David H. Blair declared that the number of tax evaders are relatively few, and they become fewer with each passing year.

The government's policy toward willful income tax evaders is to pursue them relentlessly. A systematic method is followed by the internal revenue bureau in checking up returns. When there are indications that the government has been defrauded special agents are detailed to make investigations and these sometimes lead to grand jury indictments.

$300,000,000 Recovered Last Year.

Nearly $300,000,000 was paid into the treasury last year in delinquent income taxes. This sum represented payments by those who either had falsified their income tax returns and were heavily penalized, or by those who were guilty only of excusable errors and were invited to meet additional assessments which were levied.

In drives to round up income taxes and prevent frauds Commissioner Blair's staff includes a corps of skilled investigators, commanded by Chief Elmer Irey, and these men, together with 2,000 field agents, cover the country like a blanket in the detection of income tax delinquents. Innumerable sources for rounding up income tax delinquents are at the bureau's command.

Information gathered at the "source" in varied ways enables the government to determine the individual's liability. Records supplied to the bureau show all sums of $1,000 and more paid by all individuals, trustees, guardians and other fiduciaries and by partnerships and corporations. Thousands of file cases bear data relating to the status of both individuals and corporations.

Anonymous complaints mark the starting point of a large number of the government's tax investigations. Sometimes these complaints prove groundless. The latter percentage of them, however, show up discrepancies in tax returns already made or reveal willful attempts to beat the government, according to revenue officials. Brief notes sent to the internal revenue bureau with a tip that "it might be interesting to look into Mr. Blank's income" have in thousands of cases uncovered taxes that might have been lost to the government.

Sometimes Give Valuable Hints.

Disgruntled bookkeepers have furnished complaints that have led to the collection of millions of dollars in additional revenue. Complaints from such sources as these in many instances have developed that large corporations which have made returns have juggled their books to deceive the government. Such attempts are quickly shown up after investigation.

The biggest tax welchers in the United States, revenue officials said, are bootleggers.

In several large cities revenue agents have uncovered liquor frauds that resulted in the collection of several millions in taxes, revenue assessments and penalties. In one city where the liquor traffic was controlled by a group of a half dozen men, all wealthy and politically influential, revenue agents developed 16 tax fraud cases, collected $2,000,000 in taxes due on income as shown by suddenly accumulated holding. In cases thus developed revenue agents found important "leads" to other tax frauds among wealthy bootleggers in a score of cities.

It is not difficult for the government's agents to ascertain the extent of profits made by the larger bootleggers. Suspects are quickly run down after revenue men get on the trail. It is difficult for them to cloak their profits by depositing money in banks under assumed names.

Every Clue Run Down.

Every clue given to the internal revenue bureau is run down. None is overlooked, though it often happens complaints have been made by malicious individuals, and inquiry merely results in a wild goose chase. It is not the policy of the government ever to disclose information regarding taxes due or paid by taxpayers. Congress has imposed the rule of secrecy in such matters.

Exposure of willful tax dodgers is perhaps the most effective way to deter others. A recent New York case was cited by officials. A combination of fur dealers, in conspiracy with certain government agents, sought to deceive the government by false certifications that their taxes had been paid. Through the connivance of government agents the accused got away with the game for a long time.

When the scheme was uncovered, and given wide publicity, there was an immediate rush among fur dealers all over the country to file amended returns, with additional payments of money to the government.

In Pittsburgh another sample of how exposure for the tax evader operates was cited by officials. Junk dealers doing an enormous business were apprehended. As soon as the accused were taken into court and some of them jailed there was a stampede of junk dealers to pay additional taxes on the plea that their previous returns contained "honest errors." In the Pittsburgh cases, it was shown, some dealers who made upward of 100 per cent net profit during a year certified to the government that their profits were less than 2 per cent. Most of them, in deductions claimed, represented that they had conducted their business at a loss. This and similar frauds are being regularly unearthed. Each fraud reveals others, officials said, and thereby is opened up hidden revenue sources.

The internal revenue bureau applies the rule of common sense and reasonableness in deciding the thousands of knotty problems constantly confronting the government, many of which do not involve criminal intent by those failing to make returns or who underestimate their liability. In a few typical cases the bureau made these official explanations in response to questions submitted by the New York Herald:

Must Be Bankrupt to Escape.

Q. Suppose a large income is received and all is spent in other ways than by business or speculative losses so that nothing is left with which to pay income tax? A. The taxpayer would have to submit a statement of his assets and liabilities. Proof acceptable to the bureau would have to be shown that the taxpayer is bankrupt. Proper investigation of the facts cited by the taxpayer is made by the bureau to determine if there is an effort to dodge taxes. The government views it as a case of not being advisable to try to extract "blood from a turnip" if the bankruptcy of the individual is conclusively shown.

Q. How many persons have been punished for failure to make any returns to the government showing their income? A. More than 50,000 persons each year are assessed a penalty of from $5 to $10 for failing to make a return, although their income is not taxable.

Q. Does the government have the right to examine bank records in cases of those suspected of avoiding payment of income tax? A. Congress gives the bureau the right to insist that all records, banking record or otherwise, be revealed, if that course is necessary to establish the taxpayers' status.

Q. What happens to an individual who fails to declare in his return the profits made upon sales of stocks? A. Along the line somewhere in stock transactions there is a record of the buyer and seller. Brokers' records offer reliable information on this point. Under a Supreme court decision, stock dividends are not taxable. Profits on stock sales, however, are taxable, and are required to be shown. There is a check on an individual stock sale through the preceding or subsequent sales. Very careful watch is kept upon brokers' records to detect willful failure of taxpayers to hide their profits from such sources.

Difficult to Trace.

Q. If a citizen's money is in many savings banks does the government make a total of these deposits and find out whether the total annual interest calls for a tax? A. It is difficult for the government in all cases to trace accurately the liability of taxpayers who so distribute their accumulated funds on deposit. Generally it is only in cases of flagrant efforts to hoodwink the government by that method does the government call for private bank records to disclose the taxpayer's status. The bureau regards this as a very exceptional method and one that probably does not mean very large loss to the government.

A very important part of the revenue bureau's machine is the auditing force of 2,000 men. Auditors subject the returns to closest scrutiny, and if deduction or other claim appears on their face to be doubtful, investigation usually is ordered. At different periods of the year hundreds of these experts are in the field checking up on the books of concerns whose returns have been questioned.

The internal revenue bureau has its own corps of diplomats—so-called, because they are top-notch artists in effecting compromises successfully for the government in pending litigation. There is always a jam of contested tax cases. These grow out of efforts of taxpayers to secure refunds of taxes they claim was illegally collected, or arise out of cases in which it is found the government is underpaid. In a single case, the details of which are not disclosed, the government collected an extra $10,000,000 more in taxes than was paid by a certain corporation.

Boy Weighs 17 Pounds at Birth.

TRADE THE "KIDS"

How New Yorker Would Eradicate Sin From Youngsters.

Brilliant Idea Came to Him as Result of Interview With Mothers of Future Citizens.

The New York apartment house is an excellent laboratory in which to study life and evolve profound theories, observes a New York Sun writer. For instance, there was the resident who came down to his office one day last week and announced he had discovered a sure and simple scheme for extracting sinfulness from young children. He said that he had stumbled upon his epochal idea one evening while going through the apartment with a petition to have the dumb waiter repaired.

Five out of seven families in his apartment contain children. It was eight o'clock as he made his round, that time of the day when mothers, their morale weakening, contemplate the bedlamite carrying on of their young ones and allow their minds to dwell morbidly on such subjects as hysteria, aberration and fever of the brain.

Mrs. Jones came to the door in the first-floor apartment and signed the petition; but it was probable she did not know what she was signing, for three small boys were playing steam calliope in the hall behind her and conversation was virtually impossible. When she tried to read the paper for herself she could not concentrate.

After staggering through a line or two she gave up, putting her hand to her brain and crying, "Don't blame this hullabaloo on my children! Blame it on that awful Smith boy!—the red-headed one!—he always puts 'em up to something like this. If he was mine I'd educate him with a bed slat."

The man went up a floor. Mrs. Smith signed his paper, too. But she had a hard time doing it, because two little girls in the room were yanking each other's hair out and she was trying to call an armistice with her left hand while she wrote with her right. Done writing, she turned and pried the two enemies apart, took one of them to the elevator, rang the bell and told her to go right home and stay home.

"That little Jones girl," she grated, coming back, "is going to grow up a female anarchist and get deported to Russia. If she was my child I'd get a barrel stave and—and try to stave it off."

On the third floor Mrs. Ferguson said: "Of course, I'll sign it. Have you—" Then a riot burst out behind her. She whirled around. Three young ladies were playing dolls. But they were not using dolls, they were using a cat! And the cat had got to the end of her rope. She had endured having a sunbonnet on her head and shoes laced on her feet and a corset bound round her abdomen, but when her three parents had decided that she was sick and put her to bed and begun to pour castor oil through a funnel into her throat she had quit; she had risen up and used her claws and teeth in self-defense.

Mrs. Ferguson shouted dramatically at one of these young ladies. "Jasmine Foster, if I were your mother, I'd—I'd—leave this apartment before I lose control of myself!"

The man went up one more floor and came to the Foster place. But before he could ring the bell, the door burst open and a little boy catapulted out into the hall as if he had been shot out with a cannon.

"Do you know what that—that Ferguson demon was doing?" raved Mrs. Foster, with her first words. "He was playing shoot the chutes down the lid of my grand piano!"

Then the agonized woman wailed, "Oh, if I could only get the chance to mother that—that blackguard for just one day!—just one solitary, little, twenty-four-hour day!"

And then the man went downstairs, evolving his great idea—congress should pass a law compelling every mother to trade children with another mother one day in every week.

New Marriage Service.

The woman minister of the Greville Place church, in London, Rev. Constance Mary Coltman, M. A., B. D., has composed a new marriage service which she reads at all weddings at which she officiates.

The most interesting feature of it is that both bride and bridegroom plight their troth with a ring, each placing a ring on the other's finger. The word "obey" does not occur in the service, and the man and woman make exactly the same vows. Mrs. Coltman has also written a new christening service.—London Tit-Bits.

The Helping Hand.

I had gone to the golf links to meet and accompany my husband home after his game.

Seeing a player coming toward me from a distance following up his ball, I thought I would assist him and so I picked the ball up off the green and threw it back to him. Then as he and his comrades neared the green an argument ensued as to where the ball had been.

I am now afraid to visit the links for fear of meeting the recipient of my kindness.—Chicago Tribune.

Absolutely Last.

Her Little Husband—Striking a woman is the last thing I'd ever do.

Mrs. Heavyside—It sure would be if I was the woman. You wouldn't survive long enough for an encore.

The Cut Glass Age.

There was a rough stone age and a smooth stone age and a bronze age, and many years afterwards, a cut glass age. In the cut glass age, when young ladies had persuaded young men with long, curly mustaches to marry them, they sat down several months afterwards and wrote thank you notes for all sorts of cut glass presents—punch bowls, finger bowls, vases, etc. . . . and then the struggle for existence began. The bonbon dish lost its little handle, and became a pin tray upstairs; a promenading cat knocked the little bowl off the sideboard, and the hired girl chipped the middle-sized one with the sugar dish; then the wine glasses succumbed to leg fractures, and even the dinner glasses disappeared, one by one like the ten little niggers, the last one ending up, scarred and maimed, as the toothbrush holder among other shabby genteels on the bathroom shelf.—From "Flappers and Philosophers," by F. Scott Fitzgerald.

England's Flowers by Airplane.

London makes use of a great many flowers and the country districts cannot keep up with the demands so that it is necessary to send to Europe for blooms. Holland supplies a great many flowers, and heretofore much time was lost in their delivery, but now the Dutch florists are sending their flowers daily to London by airplane. The flowers are cut at night, packed early in the morning and sent by motor car from the Boskoop flower-growing district to the Waalhaven airdrome, near Rotterdam. They arrive at Croydon, England, at 1:30 p. m., and from there are dispatched by motor car to the London florists. Boskoop flowers are thus put on sale simultaneously in the London and Dutch shops. About 100 kilograms of flowers per day are to be transported this way.

Gets Everything.

"Does the baby talk yet?"

"No," replied the baby's disgusted little brother, "the baby doesn't need to talk."

"Doesn't need to talk."

"No, all the baby has to do is to yell, and it gets everything in the house that's worth having."

The modern skirt has fewer hooks but more eyes on it.

Important Deal On.

"I notice Mr. Grabcoin and Mr. Wadleigh in earnest conversation."

"Well?"

"The financial world trembles at their nod. They are probably talking in terms of millions."

"They may be, but their very earnestness makes me suspect they are swapping bootleggers."

Editor: "I don't like this line in which you say, 'He bit the dust.' That's the old Dead-eye Dick stuff."

Author: "But I assure you it's all right in connection with my story. The character referred to was a mere pedestrian."

"Pleasures," said Uncle Ezram, "am much like mushrooms. De right kind am fine, but you has to be on de lookout foh toadstools."

"I have decided to call my home-brew 'frog'," remarked Nutt.

"Why?" asked Bolt.

"Because it has plenty of hops, but not much kick," replied Nutt.

"Come right in, Henry—he won't hurt you," said Hiram Hoskins, as his neighbor hesitated to open the front gate. "You know a barking dog never bites."

"Yes, I know that, but how am I to know how soon he's going to stop barkin'?"

The Rush.

She: "I wouldn't marry you if you were the only man in the world."

He: "Of course you wouldn't; you'd get killed in the rush!"

Many a housewife would welcome a "Can the Canvasser week."

A man talks a lot about supporting his wife and then makes her work sixteen hours a day for her board.

The finding of a headless body has caused the arrest of an American dentist. Our experience with dentists is that the head doesn't really come off; it just feels that way.

Jimmie Devine is a comparatively recent addition to the sales forces at the store of S. Cohen's Sons on Wall street, and his youthful ideas have added considerable gayety to many an important discussion during the day. The other day one of the city's new directories was delivered at the store and turned over to Jimmie, who took it to the office.

"What kind of a book is that?" he asked the girl in the office.

"That's the city directory," she explained.

"Is my name in it?" he asked.

"I hardly think so," she replied with a smile, "for you are rather youthful."

"Let me see the book a minute," begged Jimmie and he rapidly began to turn the pages until he came to the "D's."

"I thought you said my name was not in it," he said, turning to the girl, "and here it is as plain as the nose on your face," and he pointed to the line reading:

"Devine—Nellie, wid. James."

Spared His Feelings.

A little girl has been deeply concerned about the possibility of ascertaining the exact shape of the earth by means of synchronized wireless messages. A few random experiments seem to show that the term "globe" is not quite a happy one, and that Mother Earth may indeed be pear-shaped. Mary has been duly impressed.

"Mother," she exclaimed, on coming home from school, "our teacher said today that the earth is round."

"Well?" ventured the mother interrogatively.

"I didn't tell him he was wrong," said Mary, loftily.

Strength of Peppermint.

Four coeds were returning to Purdue on a crowded traction car, when a father and very small daughter arrived and had to stand in the aisle. One coed offered to hold the little miss of three, while another answered her longing glances by giving her peppermint candy. One coed suddenly saw the little girl was sitting with her mouth wide open, and inquired: "What is the matter?" The little miss replied: "Nothing, I'm just airin' it."

APPROVED BY USE

Words Really Incorrect Properly Part of Language.

Charles A. Dana Unquestionably Right in His Contentions, but He Has Been Overruled.

Charles A. Dana (of the old New York Sun) had no patience with slovenly writing. He knew his Greek and Latin and half a score of other languages so well that the derivation of an English word came to him almost instantly, and he objected to its misuse. The plea that a word was in common use did not appeal to him. He did not heed the dictionary definition. He knew the origin of the word as well as did the maker of the dictionary.

He objected to saying of a middle-aged man that he was in the prime of life, for the reason that "prime" is from the Latin word "primus," which means first. A man in the prime of life must be a very young man, he said, a man in the first part of his life, writes Chester S. Lord in the Saturday Evening Post.

Likewise, he stirred us up one day by criticizing the use a writer had made of the word "manufactured" in describing something made by machinery. "'Manufacture,'" he said, "comes from the Latin 'manus,' the hand, and 'facio,' I make; manufacture means to make by hand, not by machinery or in any other way."

He objected to the use of "dexterity" in the sense of skill, adroitness, aptitude, either physical or mental. "Dexter" is the Latin word meaning the right, and correctly speaking, "dexterous movements" means right-hand movements, was the plea.

"Where is your Latin?" he asked a writer who had said, that a political convention had indorsed a candidate. "You cannot indorse a man; you indorse a note or a document by writing on its back. 'Indorse' is from the Latin 'in,' on, and 'dorsum,' the back. It is incorrect to use it in the sense of a general approval." Some one spoke up to say that under that strict meaning you might indorse a man by hitting him on the back with a club and the critical lesson ended in laughter.

These criticisms of Mr. Dana's were made and heeded forty or fifty years ago; like many other words of Latin origin they have come into general use in the ways to which he objected. Usage is amplifying the service of many Latin roots, is giving them wider and more general meaning. "Dexterous" and "dexterity" have come by common consent to mean alert, nimble, physical or mental service of various kinds. We use the word "manufacture" for the making of anything by machinery or chemical processes or almost any way. We indorse men's sentiments or conduct, the acts of conventions or anything to which we wish to give the stamp of approval.

"Prime" is in constant use to express vigor, beauty, power, fullness of perfection, maturity.

These uses attest the constant change, the expansion of our language. There is less inclination to hold the language to rigidity of root meaning.

Currency Terminology.

Our currency terminology is derived from various sources. The five-cent coin, long designated as a "nickel," because it is of nickel alloy, has in recent years become known as a "nitney." The dime has a more ancient lineage. Its remote ancestor is the Latin term "decem," signifying ten. In early times this Latin term was adopted in England via France and the Norman conquest. The spelling was corrupted into "disme." In those days the church was supported largely by tithes consisting of one tenth of each man's income, so disme came to be used for the word tithe. Later the spelling was changed to "tithe."

The term "quarter," signifying 25 cents, grew out of a practice of money in the early days in the West. There was hardly any fractional currency in circulation. The standard silver coin was the old Spanish piece of eight. When small change was needed the dollar was taken to a blacksmith shop and cut into halves, quarters and eighths. The eighth piece of the dollar was so small that it came to be known as a "bit," and that term is still used for one shilling on the Pacific coast.

How He Escaped.

"And you are ninety-five years old!" she exclaimed. "How wonderful! You look so well, so strong, so young. How have you managed to do it?" "My method is very simple," the venerable gentleman replied. "I have never let any of my friends know it if I didn't happen to be feeling well, consequently I've never had to take any of the things they would have recommended if they had known I was ailing."—Pickup.

Natural Wonder.

Dorothy for the first time in her young life saw triplets.

She stood perfectly spellbound for some time and finally exclaimed: "Oh, mother! Come quick. Look at the twins and a half."

Life Boat to Carry 150.

Do Right Always.

Do right though pain and anguish be thy lot. Thy heart will cheer thee, when the pain's forgot. Do wrong for pleasure's sake, then count thy gains. The pleasure soon departs; the sin remains.—Bishop Shuttleworth.

Parrot Fish Well Equipped.

There is a creature inhabiting the warm waters of the Mediterranean, which has a beak like a parrot, cheek pouches like those of a monkey, and chews its cud like a cow. It is called the parrot fish. It browses on the weeds that flourish on the sea floor of the Mediterranean. Its upper and lower jaws have become hardened into a sharp curved beak, which is just the tool required for lopping off tough sea weed. Each piece snipped off by the beak is passed into one of the two curious pouches which adorn the cheeks, and there it remains until the parrot fish feels that it has collected enough for a good meal. It then chews the cud by means of the splendid set of teeth, which nature has placed not in its mouth, but in its throat, we are told by the Detroit News.

What Is a Drought?

According to an official definition which has been in use among meteorologists for over thirty years, an absolute drought is a period of more than fourteen consecutive days not one of which is a rain day. A rain day is a day with .01 in. or more of rain (an inch of rain means 100 tons to the acre). A partial drought is a period of more than 28 consecutive days, the mean rainfall of which does not exceed .01 in. per day.

Threshing in Tibet.

The threshing of barley in Tibet is an amusing process. It is strewn several inches deep in an inclosure of hard earth, over which a number of yaks, frightened by the beating of drums, are driven back and forth over the barley.

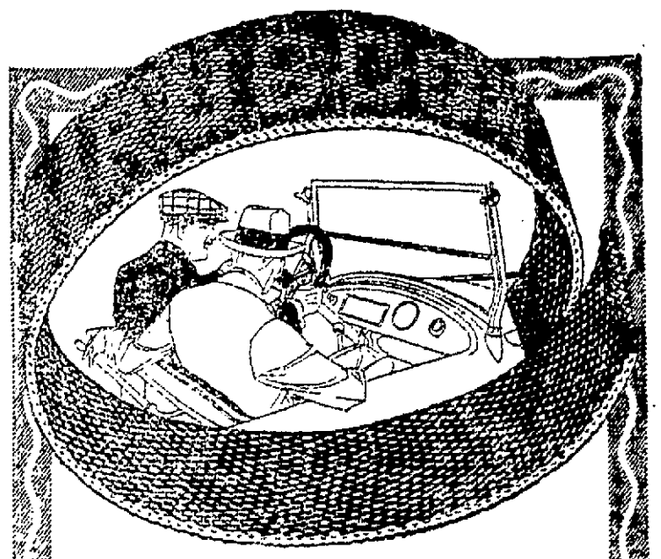
Mrs. Eva Ford of Woodstock spent Saturday and Sunday here.

Ancient Culinary Ideas.

Some of the early ideas of delicacies would not appeal to the modern taste, nor would such methods as some Roman cooks applied to the red mullet, which was cooked while alive in a glass vessel on the table.



When were your brakes inspected last?

YOU would say a railroad was criminally negligent if it did not inspect its safety devices regularly. But probably more people trust their lives to automobile brakes than to any other safety device in the world. Yet how often do you have your brakes inspected?

Begin now to have it done regularly. Be sure your brakes and your brake linings are O. K. If the lining needs to be replaced, don't postpone it.

Specify RUSCO Brake Lining—made of the finest asbestos and brass wire. To test it, bend a piece back and forth hard; you cannot crack it. It is tough and flexible, and will not acquire that hard, metallic surface which causes slipping. Unravel a thread and touch a lighted match to it. Pure asbestos will not burn and neither will Rusco Brake Lining. Nothing but sheer recklessness can get past Rusco. It is guaranteed to give satisfactory service. Ask your garageman or accessory dealer.

RUSCO Clutch Facings engage very smoothly. A Rusco Tow Line is strong as steel cable, compact as an inner tube.

Rusco Fan Belts are safe and economical for the cooling system. Rusco Hood Lacing silences many a squeak. Rusco Tire Straps stay permanently jet black, and never lose tires.

A Rusco Tabbuckler Strap is made in a few moments for any purpose. The Rusco Emergency Brakes for Fords have patented Brace Plates which make them immensely powerful. The Rusco (Denonco) non-chatter Band reduces chatter and makes replacement of Rusco Ford Transmission Lining a simple matter.

MERRILEE RAN SO FAST MET SELF

Captain Ralph Roodboy's New Hunting Dog Stuns Self Chasing a Rabbit Around a Tree—Another Tale of the Wandering Gallupers.

"Jiminy, but that's a crackerjack looking dog," remarked Blink Biven as he and the other Gallupers stood off and admired the animal that emerged from the shipping crate. Their remarks were well merited for the dog was certainly a fine looking specimen of a rabbit hound.

"What's this tag on its neck?" asked Zink Biven, as he stopped and read it.

"Merrilee," pelled out Zink slowly. "Gosh, but that must be its name."

"You said it," agreed Captain Roodboy, "and I for one certainly appreciate what the boys of the Gallupers have done in remembering me with a present while on this trip." The rabbit dog had been bought by the other members of the winning team in the Mountain League and sent by express to the nearest village where the crate and dog was met by Roodboy and the others and taken to the hunting shack.

"When are you going to try him out?" asked Raiser Turk after he had admired the fine points of the dog.

"Too late now," replied Roodboy, "but I was thinking we might go after rabbits in the morning."

"Yum, yum," murmured Zink Biven as he smacked his lips. "rabbit stew won't go so bad I'll say."

The next day the four Gallupers left the shack bright and early, accompanied by Merrilee who frisked along glad of the chance to stretch its legs after its long trip by rail in a crate.

All of the boys carried their guns and Merrilee soon proved that not only was he a good looking rabbit hound but that he was a good hunting dog for he soon rounded up a rabbit which he drove past the guns of the boys.

The morning sport proved exceptionally good with a fine bag of rabbits to show for the skill of the dog, and it would have proven an ideal day but for an unfortunate accident that overtook Merrilee.

The animal had roused a big jack rabbit at the foot of a big oak tree, but the rabbit instead of running away from the tree began to circle it with Merrilee in full cry after it. Faster and faster around the tree darted the rabbit and as Roodboy and the others came up all they could see was two streaks encircling the hunt of the tree.

It is impossible to distinguish which was dog or which was rabbit and they were forced to hold their fire. It must have been a quarter of an hour later when the rabbit exhausted and dizzy spun out over and landing at the feet of Roodboy who picked the animal up and hitting it behind the ears placed it with the others in his hunting bag.

Merrilee, however, did not stop for the dog was traveling around the tree so fast that it never missed the rabbit, and failing to catch up with it put on such a spurt of speed that it circled the tree so fast that it overtook itself head-on. So fierce was the impact that Merrilee was stunned and rolled over and over on the ground.

"Golly," said Zink Biven in an awed tone "but that is the first time I ever saw anything travel so fast that it overtook itself."

SAMSONVILLE.

Samsonville, Oct. 18.—The visitors at Kelder's Farm on Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Merrihew of Walden, Mr. and Mrs. Davis Merrihew of Tillson, George M. Smedes of Tillson, Mr. and Mrs. Abram Kelder, daughter, Coral and son, Gilbert, of Rosendale, Lester and Robert Boice and Mr Tremper of Kingston, Mr. Osterhoudt and family of Kyserike, Elijah Miller, Elias Miller and Floyd Brown of Samsonville. Mr. Smedes will spend a few weeks with his daughter, Mrs. Kelder.

Joe Mayer of the Bide-a-Wee, is doing some repairing. Mr. Johnson is doing the carpenter work.

F. N. Davis and son have the new parsonage at Krumville nearly completed.

J. W. Kelder is building a new barn, also repairing house and other buildings.

E. D. Schoonmaker and wife of Ellenville were guests at Kelder's over night recently.

M. J. Kelder is very busy supplying the people with meat in this vicinity. An up to date market will be erected soon by Mr. Kelder and son.

Mr. Halversen has returned from New York city.

J. W. Kelder has purchased a wood lot of Mrs. Brown of Leibhardt.

NEW PALTZ.

New Paltz, Oct. 18.—The new state road from this village to Highland is open to the public.

Mr. Lent of Brooklyn visited friends on Elting avenue a few days the past week.

Mrs. Hoit was a week end visitor in Brooklyn.

Sunset Inn is closed and Mr. and Mrs. Rider and family are spending a few weeks with their daughter at Utica.

Miss Beatrice Thorne entertained the T. L. C. Club at her home on Friday evening last.

Clarence Duryea and Arthur Fitzpatrick spent Sunday in the Catskills.

Twelve teams with three and four seated stages conveyed the Normal and High School students to Lake Mohonk on Thursday, where they spent the day.

White and purple violets and wild strawberries were in blossom on the New Paltz flats the past week.

The road between this village and the Arbuckle farm is being improved. When completed it will be a good road.

Hard to Understand.

Some one asks this question: Why is it one wakes up at 4 a. m. quite rested and fresh, turns over, sleeps soundly for four hours and once more awakens—tired out and awfully sleepy?

BE ON SAFE SIDE

Words Once Written Cannot Be Obliterated.

Never Really Wise to Commit One's Self Too Strongly on Paper on Any Subject.

There are few precepts more worthy of acceptance than that which bids us to beware of the written word.

"Think before you speak," is excellent advice. "Think before you write, and then don't write or at any rate not what you had at first intended to say," is better.

To write a thing is far more serious than to say it. The glamor of personal presence is not there to color the meaning; the charm of manner, the shades of tone are lacking; the bare words must stand on their own merits.

We forget too often that written words cannot be followed by immediate explanations, may not be modified by inflection of voice or glance of eye. There can be no illuminating gesture, no merry or tender facial expression.

Moreover, it is impossible to foresee the frame of mind in which a letter may be received. It may be a mood to which perhaps the writer would never have addressed such words could he or she have known beforehand.

All this applies to ordinary letters written in confidence, between friend and friend. Still more does it behoove women to beware of what they write to men. It is always best to be on the safe side, and not too near the edge, either.

The strictly punctilious person who would entirely prohibit letters between lovers would be hard of heart, indeed. What is more, any such objection would be useless. What would become of parted lovers if they might not write to one another? Telling one's love on paper may be an indescribable comfort when it cannot be told by word of mouth.

Nevertheless it is well for even fond lovers to remember that sweets are valued in exact proportion to their rarity. Affection should, if possible, be tempered with discretion.

Assurances of love in a woman's letter ought to be like the seasoning of a salad—carefully proportioned and not too strong. The love which shows between the lines is more alluring than that which is openly expressed.

Nor is it wise to commit oneself too strongly on paper with regard to what one will or will not do in the future. All these good resolutions and fair promises are apt to confront one later on to one's confusion and dismay.

It is useless to urge prudence upon people in love. "To love and to be wise in love is scarcely given to the gods above."

What, then, can be expected from mere mortals? When frequent meetings are impossible, the love letter has a more important part to play in courtship. Still, if people, women especially, would only remember that engagements are not unbreakable, and that those for whom letters are not intended sometimes see them, it might save infinite mortification and sorrow later on.—Exchange.

Calls Dimples Marks of Beauty.

Is the dimple a mark of beauty? Or is it the maid with that bewitching birthmark and the Cupid's bow mouth less beautiful and intelligent than her sister without these attractions?

Dr. A. S. Warthin, eminent pathologist of the University of Michigan, says they bear a relationship to the harelip and the cleft palate which never yet in this or any other land have been accepted as beautiful. They mark a girl as "below par," says Doctor Warthin.

He said it during a lecture on "The Inheritance of Disease," in which he made a direct appeal for eugenics, better living conditions that should breed better humans, and a plea for the recognition of certain inheritances.

He declares that the old proverb, "Blood will tell," has proven its truth throughout the ages and that today this fact was becoming recognized and that civilized people were at least considering what could be done to breed a better race.

"Rope of Rat Tails."

A rope made of 3,000 gopher (ground squirrel) tails was recently on display at the office of the Montana extension director, awaiting shipment to the biological survey of the United States Department of Agriculture. The rope was made by the Blackfeet Indian chief Split-Ear, and his tribal assistants, who live near Browning, in Glacier county, Montana. The Indians have taken an active interest in the campaign against the rodents, and after burying more than 1,400 ground squirrels decided to save tails for the 18-foot rope now on exhibition. It is estimated that at least 15,000 rodents were destroyed by the Indians during the drive.

One day Billie chanced to stray in our yard, and upon seeing our dog he began to admire it.

Finally he said: "Oh, we have a little dog at our place."

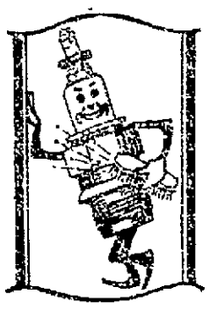
B-G
The Plug that Cleans Itself
(BASIC PATENTS GRANTED-MARCH 14-1922)



There is a new kind of ignition efficiency and motoring satisfaction awaiting you in the B-G self-cleaning plug. Many thousands of motorists are proving it.

Why not bring YOUR motor up to date now?

You will quickly note and enjoy the advantages of the B-G, and your enjoyment will be increased by the knowledge that the long-desired improvements are permanent.

Being ALWAYS clean the B-G is ALWAYS efficient

With cold weather at hand you will be especially interested in the fact that the B-G insures quick easy starting with a cold motor.

See your dealer today about your set of B-G's

THE B-G CORPORATION
136 West 52nd Street New York City
Contractors to the U. S. Army Air Service and to the U. S. Navy

Reasons Why

1 The B-G gives complete freedom from sparkplug cleaning—The insulator and points are scoured with every spark by the B-G Spark-flame

2 Eliminates carbon—The highly vaporized fuel in the primary combustion chamber and around the points burns evenly and cleanly

3 Prevents fouling from oil—Oil globules carried in the fuel are so thoroughly vaporized that insulator and sparking points remain permanently clean

4 Maintains full power—The intensity of the B-G Spark-flame, shooting into the cylinder, insures the greatest power value from every explosive charge

5 Saves fuel—Installing a full set of permanently clean B-G's permits adjustment of the carburetor to the leanest possible mixture and insures maximum gas mileage

6 Insures easy starting—Always clean, the B-G prevents current leakage and produces the most intense ignition, resulting in immediate combustion.

Irving's Short Story.

I consider a story merely as a frame on which to stretch the materials; it is the play of thought, and sentiment, and language, the weaving in of characters, lightly, yet expressively delineated; the familiar and faithful exhibition of scenes in common life; and the half-concealed vein of humor that is often playing through the whole—these are among what I aim at, and upon which I felicitate myself in proportion as I think I succeed.—Washington Irving.

"Nip and Tuck."

"Nip and tuck" is an expression signifying an equality, or nearly so, in any strife, but particularly in a horse race or a game. It is equivalent to the phrase "neck and neck."

BANDITS GET GEM BROKER'S TREASURE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Chicago, Oct. 18.—Police today were making a systematic search for four bandits who late last night kidnapped and robbed Max Moser, a diamond salesman and broker of New York, of gems valued at between $275,000 and $300,000.

The robbery occurred downtown just as Moser had entered the automobile of a friend, Charles J. Morris, a representative of the New York Life Insurance Company, to be driven to the railroad station to catch a train.

Guns were levelled at Moser and Morris. They were forced into the back of the car, driven away and robbed.

Moser told the police he met Morris at a dinner earlier in the evening. Moser said he represented the New York diamond firms of Jacob Scheen, Louis Whitelaw and Samuel Lenkowsky & Son.

Gem robberies totalling over $2,000,000 have been reported to the Chicago police in the last two years.

DR. HOUSE SPEAKS TO GARDEN CLUB

The meeting of the Ulster Garden Club this week was held on Tuesday afternoon at St. John's Parish House, when Dr. House, state botanist, gave an illustrated talk on "Wild Flowers." Dr. House was introduced by Mrs. Everett Fowler, president of the club. To begin with Dr. House showed several pictures of home and school gardens in and about Albany, in the interest of proving that the poorest, most dismal back, or front yard may be made attractive with flowers. He told his audience that practically all of our garden flowers were of foreign origin, very, very few being native to our soil. As for making use of our wild flowers in dooryard gardens Dr. House was of the opinion that but few could be so utilized to advantage. Among these were the New England Aster and the Golden Rod, and where found, the Rose Mallow. There were many others, some of them very beautiful that could possibly be transplanted, provided a sufficient amount of their native soil was transplanted with them and they could be so placed as to be nearly in the same conditions as where found. Unless all such conditions could be provided, Dr. House was rather unfavorable to the bringing of our wild flowers into our gardens, where they would soon die and all of their future beauty be lost to the world. Dr. House showed many beautifully colored pictures of wild flowers, known to practically all present at the lecture, telling a bit about their habits and homes.

During his talk Dr. House said that the State Department of Botany was quite at the service of every community in the state and anyone wishing help or information regarding flowers or plants was invited to write to the department for such information or help.

Prayer.

More things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of. Wherefore, let thy voice rise like a fountain for me night and day. For what are men better than sheep or goats that nourish a blind life within the brain, if, knowing God, they lift not hands of prayer both for themselves and those who call them friend? For so the whole round earth is every way bound by gold chains about the feet of God. —Alfred Tennyson.

TUBERCULOSIS AND RED CROSS DRIVES DIFFER.

Very soon now there will be two drives or campaigns in operation in the city and county and The Freeman has been asked to issue a word of warning ... that the public may not be confused over the matter. The Red Cross drive for membership will begin on Armistice Day. Half of the proceeds of this drive remains in Ulster county for the use of the local Red Cross which has some new and important local activities to take up. The other half goes to the National Red Cross, and just because of the fund thus created for the national organization it has been possible for America through her Red Cross to offer the help to Smyrna and other Near East sufferers that it has offered and will give.

The first of December the Tuberculosis Christmas Seals will be ready for sale for the furthering of tuberculosis work in our own county and throughout the nation. The money from the Christmas seals will be expended exclusively for tuberculosis work and has nothing whatever to do with the Red Cross.

PALMER SYSTEM BRINGING RESULTS

Kingston School Children's Penmanship Has Improved Nearly 100 Per Cent, Reports Superintendent Michael—New Awards of Pins and Certificates.

Board of Education,
City of Kingston, N. Y.
October 17, 1922.

Editor, The Freeman,

Dear Sir:—Your publication of my report on the subject of penmanship as carried on in our schools has stimulated great interest in this very important subject on the part of teachers and pupils. It has been a potent factor in improving the penmanship of the school children in the Kingston schools by nearly one hundred per cent.

Your courtesies of the past lead me to send to you a list of pupils in each school who are entitled to the Palmer awards as a result of examinations in penmanship conducted last June. The names of teachers are also given who have qualified as teachers of penmanship under the Palmer method.

If at any time you wish to use your available space for this material, I am sure it will help to still farther stimulate interest in good writing among our pupils and teachers.

Very truly yours,
M. J. MICHAEL.

Progress in penmanship under the Palmer system has been most satisfactory. Since my last report awards of certificates and pins have been made as follows:

School	Silver stars	Gold stars	Method buttons	Progress pins
1	3	18	40	20
2	12	21	64	23

Studebaker

Comparison Will Emphasize Its Value

The Studebaker Big-Six Sedan delivers everything you can ask of a motor car.

If you pay more than the Big-Six price, you may buy more weight, but it is impossible to get finer materials or better craftsmanship than are used by Studebaker.

Compare this Big-Six Sedan with the most expensive cars. Check the body with any body built, compare the chassis construction, look into the endurance records of the Big-Six as compared with any other car.

Get behind the wheel yourself. Test its performance, its comfort. Check its appearance with any car at any price. And don't overlook this point: Studebaker has more than 3,000 branches and dealers throughout the country who are always ready to render efficient service.

And finally, compare the equipment and appointments.

Consider the Big-Six Sedan as an investment. There is no reason to pay more. The name Studebaker stands for satisfaction.

HAS anyone ever told you that coffee and tea contain caffeine and thein—which are well-known drugs, as any doctor can tell you?

If you are troubled with nervous headaches; if you lack energy; if you don't sleep soundly and restfully at night, it may be because of the coffee or tea you are drinking.

Why not test it out for yourself and see? Stop coffee or tea for a week or two. Drink Postum instead. See if this delicious, pure cereal beverage does not help build up your system by letting you get sound, deep sleep.

The rich, satisfying flavor of Postum will surprise and please you—and like thousands of former coffee-drinkers you may never go back to coffee-drinking again.

Ask your grocer today for Postum. Have it served piping hot, in all its rich, aromatic fragrance—and see how well you like it!

Postum comes in two forms:—Instant Postum (in tins) prepared instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling fully twenty minutes.

PREPARING FOR BASKETBALL YEAR

Opening Game of New York State Basketball League Will be Staged Wednesday, October 25, When Cohoes Plays Here—Exhibition Game Tonight at Armory.

A week from tonight the New York State Basketball League opens in this city at the state armory when Cohoes comes here to oppose the local team Managers of the clubs in the circuit are busily engaged in rounding out their plans for the season. An exhibition game will be staged at the armory tonight, when the local representatives play the Trenton team Besides giving the players good practice the fans will also have a chance to see who are going to represent them this year and how they perform

The state basketball league is endeavoring to overcome the many obstacles that are arising and they are working out plans to raise the standards of play and sportsmanship and of personal conduct while on the court

Some facts about the league, the individual teams and the players follow

Managers have agreed that the exorbitant salaries which were paid the players last year must be pared if the game is to survive and the players have apparently come to the same conclusion by agreeing to lower terms Even with the cuts already effected and proposed the state league pays its players more than the Metropolitan league it is understood and the latter circuit does not have the towering expense to pay that set back the state league a considerable sum The real solution is to have every player live in the city where he plays, but this is hard to effect at this time and the various managers would be content if most of the players lived in their league city and have only one or two men come from New York

Games will be played in the State League this year on three nights Wednesday, Friday and Saturday Schenectady and Albany will be the Saturday night clubs and Amsterdam and Cohoes will perform at home on Fridays as in the past but Kingston has changed from Tuesday night to Wednesday and Troy has switched from Saturday to Wednesday Double-headers, afternoon and night games will be played on three holidays Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year s

The managers in the league this year are practically the same as last season Fay T Inman who piloted the Utica club ever since the league was formed has transferred his franchise to Schenectady where he will be associated with a local men in the promotion of the game William H Hepinstall Jr, as usual will lead the Albany club Louis J Sykes and Samuel J Wallin will again hold the reins in Amsterdam Frank Morgenweck retains his rights in Kingston Richard J Donlon will again pilot the champion Cohoes club and Neil McGrath has sold a half interest in the Troy club to Eddie Long With the exception of the Troy club, which plays in Bolton Hall, all the teams perform in the armories in their respective cities

Manager Inman of the Schenectady team is busy lining up the players to form his team He wants to have a strong combination Two players from New York have been signed and one more a center, the most difficult position to fill now, may also be brought up from the metropolitan section Inman has several pivot men in view but hasn't decided on any as yet Three or four home players stars of former teams here will probably again be wearing a Schenectady uniform

Albany will present about the same lineup that carried off two successive titles in the State League—Barney Sedran Marty Friedman Harry Riconda "Honey Russell Leo Duval and Bucky Collins

Cohoes hopes to have same combination that won the league honors last year but there may be one or two changes because of conflicts with the Metropolitan League The players on Manager Donlon's list now are Joe Trippe Marty Barry Tom O'Neill Mike Johnson Bill Kampmeier, Pete Gilligan Herm Bergcamp Eddie Case, Vincent and Quinn Cohoes boys, and Eddie Burke a player who belongs to a club in the Metropolitan League, but can't come to satisfactory terms

Amsterdam like Albany, appears to be in line with the same outfit as last year—Kennedy Stewart, Cosgrove, Smolick and Wassmer as regulars with Morton Bennett, Conway, Schilling, Knoblock and Lansing as possible extras

Manager Morgenweck in Kingston will rely on the three Powers brothers, Charlie, Artie and Ralph, Bennie Borgemann Carl and Mike Husta and George Artus

Troy has a fine string of players in line, but McGrath and Long are as yet unable to announce a definite lineup Included among the men in view are Sheehan Norman, Lopchick Long, Haverty, Haggerty, Malone Bruggy, Brennan, Evers, Hiser, Ripley and Boyle

The league season will be lifted a week from today with Albany playing in Troy and Cohoes performing in Kingston The initial week's schedule:

Wednesday—Albany at Troy, Cohoes at Kingston.

Friday—Troy at Amsterdam, Schenectady at Cohoes, Kingston at Albany (Note Albany will play its opening game on Friday night instead of Saturday because the Albany armory is being used on the latter night by the Albany Elks)

Saturday—Amsterdam at Schenectady.

For the first two weeks of the campaign teams will be permitted to use an unlimited number of players After that time the rosters will be cut down to ten men, at which number they will remain until the end of the season New players become eligible after seven days' registration.

HAWAIIAN PRINCESS NOT LIKE FAIRY BOOK KIND

Daughter of Late Queen Liliuokalani, in United States to Study, Likes Flappers.

"She's a princess of the blood royal," just like the fairy books used to start out' But the Princess Liliuokalani Kawanankoa of Hawaii is not like the old fairy book princesses. She has black bobbed hair instead of golden braids, and she admits, without castdown eyelids, that she is supremely lazy and adores nothing better than lying in bed late in the mornings' Oh, yes, one thing better—breakfast in bed

Princess Lilio—her royal title is too unpronounceably long for her to bother with—is seventeen and has come from Hawaii to complete her thoroughly American education in a San Francisco convent The daughter of Hawaii's beloved Queen Liliuokalani, she does not even speak the language of her native land, preferring English. She refuses, she says, to be queenly. She would rather be a wild flapper "They are a type" she explains; "they defy tradition Therefore, I am one" And as she stands, erect, slender, short-skirted, golden skinned, radiating youth she seems nothing less than a splendid example of American girlhood

"Lilio" confesses she is not fond of study History and Latin are not so bad, however She is a thorough little sportswoman, with a happy disposition She never pines like artistic little princesses used to do Hear this, given quick sentences, interspersed with flashes of white teeth and black eyes underneath a true Hawaiian "bob": "About all we do in Honolulu is ride, swim, dance and play cards I love to do all but play cards They bore me My chief characteristic? I guess it's laziness I just must sleep late in the mornings even if it means doing without breakfast"

And with her philosophy of happiness this tropical little princess expects to outdo all the royal maidens of fairy book fame, when it comes to "living happily ever after"

HAS NOT SWALLOWED FOOD IN EIGHT YEARS

Little Jennie Kavanski of Rochester, N Y, doesn't know what it means to taste and swallow a good dinner To her Thanksgiving is but a Thursday in November, for Jennie's oesophagus has been closed since an attack of tonsilitis which she suffered at the age of three years Since then being unable to swallow she has taken her nourishment through a rubber tube, which passes directly into her stomach through a slit in the abdominal walls

Jennie is eleven years of age and, but for this misfortune is a healthy, normal child in every respect, plump, robust and strong

Whenever she feels hungry—which is rather more often than at usual meal times—she places the food, always liquid, in a glass pump and pumps it through the rubber tube directly into her stomach

"CITY OF ROOFS"

Description That Aptly Characterizes Japan's Capital.

Tokyo, With Its Architectural Peculiarities, Has Also Been Likened to a Collection of Henroops

Tokyo, the capital of Japan, which not long ago gave a right royal welcome to the prince of Wales covers a larger space in proportion to its population than any other capital city in the world, except, perhaps, Peking.

The reason is the same as that which makes London, and American cities, too in proportion to their number of inhabitants, incomparably vaster than Paris, or Berlin, or Vienna—the tendency for each family to live under his own roof tree But as the average Japanese family is much poorer than the average Londoner, and as in any case Japanese houses are minute creations of wood and paper, this city of hardly more than 2,000,000 souls occupies a space hardly less than that of Greater London

Some years ago a Japanese painter exhibited in the annual Academy of Tokyo a picture of the capital as seen from one of its northern hills He entitled it "A City of Roofs," and the title was an apt one Each roof measures only a few square yards, and of the myriads of houses the vast majority are only one or two stories high. Even so, the buildings are so tiny by European standards that one can almost touch the eaves with one's hand without stretching and so frail that one could effect burglarious entry with a pair of pocket-scissors

Were it not for the exquisite taste of Japanese architecture, even in mean houses and the exquisite cleanliness of Japanese personal habits, one might not unfairly compare Tokyo to a city of henroops

Save for one main street, the world-famous Ginza, which is the Broadway of Tokyo, the city's streets are quite unpaved In the wet season the surface mud is so deep and sticky that it will suck a pair of low shoes off a European's feet The Japanese do not mind the mud because they wear wooden pattens or geta in the wet season The deeper the mud, the bigger the geta

The streets are merely narrow lanes between the henroops so narrow that one can almost touch either side by stretching the arms Right and left of the street are deep ditches of unspeakable filth bridged by stone flags at the entrance to each house or shop

After all medieval London was hardly better And the truth about Japan is that still today it is medieval, both in its absence of sanitation and its morality

At the very first glance a European arriving in Yokohama or Tokyo recognizes this medievalism The coolies, the rickshawmen the working class are clad in jerkin and blue tights; they might but for their Mongol faces, be 'supers' in the conventional stage setting of "Henry IV"

To imagine Tokyo or any other Japanese city properly one might first imagine London in the Fourteenth century and then imagine that London equipped with every modern appliance save paving and sanitation, with trams, electric railways, the telephone and electric lights But to complete the picture one must imagine a decorative graphic and architectural art as living and spontaneous and gracious as that of London of the Fourteenth century

Figures That Stagger

A full chart of the ancestry of all the 200,000 000 more or less, of people of English ancestry scattered over the world would if carried back to the Twelfth century and written with one name to the square inch, cover some 25,000,000 of square miles

SUPERVISORS LET TOWNS BORROW

For Highway Purposes—Also Release Funds for Child Welfare, Highway 33, Dog, Election and Other Bills.

A box of extra fine red snow apples, a donation from Supervisor Frederick Davis of the town of Marbletown, and a new supervisor representing the town of Ulster were two added features to the session of the board of supervisors held at the court house Tuesday evening. The new supervisor is the Hon. Joel Brink of Katrine who has been appointed by the town board of the town of Ulster in place of his cousin, Frank Brink, resigned. The latter has been afflicted with rheumatism and is unable to use his hands to write and attend to matters pertaining to the town's business, hence his resignation. Joel Brink, who is a former member, stated that Frank was improving, and when he is able to attend to his legislative duties again he would resign and that the town board would reinstate Frank to the office.

The principal business at the special session was to pass six acts allowing that number of towns to borrow money for highway purposes by issuing certificates of indebtedness under the highway law. The petitions and acts were introduced by the following supervisors, read by title, advanced to third reading and passed, there being no objection:

Supervisor Dusenberre—Allowing the town of Gardiner to borrow $1,000.

Supervisor Rowe—Allowing the town of Hurley to borrow $400.

Supervisor Frederick Davis—Allowing the town of Marbletown to borrow $666.66.

Supervisor Auchmoedy—Allowing the town of Rosendale to borrow $666.66.

Supervisor Breithaupt—Allowing the town of Shandaken to borrow $1,000.

Supervisor Brink—Allowing the town of Ulster to borrow $2,000.

A communication was read from Division Superintendent Sturdevant of the State Highway department regarding improvement of the Wallkill-Ireland Corners connecting link highway, a distance of 5.4 miles which could be improved under the provisions of the Hewitt bill as a county highway. A resolution was offered by Supervisor Dusenberre that that public interest demands such improvement to be made, the proposed improvement being in the towns of Shawangunk, Plattekill and Gardiner, and that the clerk of the board notify the state highway department of the adoption of the resolution by transmitting a copy of same. Adopted.

The board of child welfare sent a communication by Mrs. Hickey, the secretary, stating that the board was caring for 14 families with 60 children with an expenditure of $384 monthly. There was a deficit of $164 on October 4, and $1,100 was needed besides the deficit of $164.

In connection with the above Supervisor Fratsher offered a resolution that there be appropriated $1,500 for the relief of widows and orphans and transferred by the county reasurer from the child's welfare fund and paid to the local board of child welfare for distribution for widowed mothers and children as provided by the resolution adopted on December 9, 1921, and so only. Adopted.

Supervisor Fratsher offered a resolution that $3,900 now available from the county share of the motor vehicle fund be transferred from that fund for the construction of Highway 32, in the town of Saugerties, under provisions of resolutions adopted by the board on April 27 and August 1, 1922. Adopted.

The following dog bills were read, reported as complying with the law, audited by the board, and the county treasurer authorized to pay out of the state dog moneys in his hands: City Marshal Arthur Rice, $4.46; City Judge Schirick, $6; Roscoe North, Marbletown, $51.55; L. Decker, New Paltz, $46.85; John Heddon, Gardiner, $53.75; Raymond DuBois, Gardiner, $16.55.

The following bills certified to by the board of elections, being claims for canvassing vote on primary day, were read, approved and audited: Roscoe E. Ellsworth, $25; Marsden Ross, $25; Mark Sampson, $15; Henry Bernstein, $15.

Other bills read, certified as correct were audited as follows: Miller's Taxi Service for committee on securing rights of way, $12; Walter J. Miller, searching as to titles of land for county attorney, $75; Frank Wilhelmn, serving notices on landowners along right of way Wurtsboro-Ellenville highway for condemnation, $66.

The board of supervisors then adjourned on motion of Supervisor Sagendorf subject to the call of the Chair.

P.-T. A. SCHOOL 6 MEETING LARGELY ATTENDED.

The second monthly meeting of the Parent-Teachers' Association of School No. 6 was held at the school building at 3:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. The meeting was opened by a vocal solo by Isabel Scudder, which was well rendered. There was an unusually large attendance owing to the successful efforts of the committee on membership.

Miss Edson's room won the banner for attendance of parents of the grammer grades and Miss Conners's room for the largest attendance of parents of primary grades.

MATTERS BEFORE THE SURROGATE

In surrogate's court in the matter of the judicial settlement of the accounts of Sands Haviland and Henry C. Cooley, as executors and trustees of the estate of John E. Lawson, late of the town of Marlborough, objections were filed, an argument had and finally a decree was directed by Surrogate Kaufman. John Rusk for executors and trustees; William F. Cassidy, Newburgh, for objectors.

In the matter to show cause why certain claims should not be paid in the matter of the accounting of the executrix in the estate of N. S. Schermerhorn, late of the city of Kingston, an adjournment was taken until October 24. N. H. Fessenden for certain claimants.

SILIQUA IS STEPPING FAST THIS SEASON.

Siliqua, the Stone Ridge race horse, won second money in a $1,000 purse race at Stafford, Conn., winning the first heat in 2:10¼, lowering the track record. Following the races the judges suspended both Siliqua and Percy Brink for not trying to win the race, but they will be both reinstated in time to race at Avon, Conn., tomorrow.

Siliqua is showing some great speed this year, in fourteen races has won nine firsts, four times second and third once. Siliqua is considered by the best horsemen to be one of the most consistent half mile trotters of the season. The little trotter has been meeting the best horses on the track and the above record speaks well for the Stone Ridge horse.

UNITED LUTHERAN CONVENTION OPENS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 18.—The United Lutheran Church in America, representing over 3,000 congregations having 1,250'000 baptized members, the oldest Lutheran body in America, opened its formal business session here this morning with approximately 1,000 delegates in attendance. The Rev. Ellis B. Burgess, D. D., of Pittsburgh, president of the Pittsburgh synod, was elected chairman of the convention until the president, the Rev. F. H. Knabel, who is ill in New York city, can take charge of the convention. E. Clarence Miller of Philadelphia, president of the Bioren Banking Company, was re-elected treasurer. This is Mr. Miller's third term as treasurer. Dr. F. F. Fry of Rochester presented to the president a gavel made from a tree on Mount Olivet, in the Garden of Gethsemane, Jerusalem, which will be used by the president throughout the convention.

Society Notes

Zates-Lewis.

Fred A. Zates of No. 21 East Pierpont street and Miss Helen T. Lewis of No. 83 Ann street were united in marriage Sunday by the Rev. J. F. Duffy of St. Mary's Church. The witnesses were Stanley P. Wojcio and Miss Mary Lewis.

Sagendorf-Lasher.

Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock, a wedding party from Katsbaan visited the Saugerties Congregational parsonage and were married by the pastor, the Rev. T. E. Richards. The bride was Edna F. Lasher of Katsbaan. The bridegroom was Walter E. Sagendorf also of Katsbaan. U. Grant Teetsel and wife of Katsbaan, accompanied the couple.

Bungalow "House Warming."

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Brodhead of West Pierpont street entertained their friends on last Thursday night, the occasion being the completion of their new 5-room bungalow. They also received a number of very useful presents for their new home. During the evening refreshments were served and dancing was enjoyed by all. The guests departed in the early hours wishing Mr. and Mrs. Brodhead the best of success in their new bungalow.

Weber-Dwyer.

John E. Weber, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Weber of No. 1 Abeel street, and Miss J. Angela Dwyer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Dwyer of No. 60 West Chestnut street, were quietly married this afternoon at the home of the bride's parents by the Very Rev. John J. Hickey of New York city, formerly of St. Mary's Church, this city. The ceremony was witnessed by only the immediate relatives of the contracting parties. The groom was attended by his brother, Louis E. Weber, and the bridesmaid was Miss May Haggerty of New York city, a former classmate of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Weber left later in the day for a three weeks' auto tour.

Lowell Club.

This year the Lowell Club is taking up the study of "The Bible in Literature." The club held its first meeting of the fall on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Miss Baker, the president. The roll call was "Vacation Experiences," which proved to be both entertaining and amusing. Mrs. Van Leuven had the paper of the day, and very ably and interestingly presented her subject, "How We Got Our Bible." This was followed by a map study of "The Ancient World," given from the maps themselves, by Mrs. Fessenden. The literary program closed with a reading, "Out-of-Doors in the Holy Land," given by Mrs. Lewis. This club voted to contribute $25 toward the Women's Federation House in Washington, the pledge to be paid in by the first of November. The afternoon ended delightfully with the serving of refreshments and a social hour. Next week the Lowell Club will meet with Mrs. Deyo at her home on Green street.

IRISH PEACE HOPE DIES; REBELS CLING TO ARMS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Dublin, Oct. 18.—Peace negotiations between Eamonn de Valera, leader of the Republican Irregulars and the Irish Free State government, have broken down because the rebels refused to give up their arms, it was learned today. GOV'T INCOME EQUALS EXPENSE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Oct. 18.—Government expenses so far this fiscal year have been kept within government income, despite treasury predictions of a large deficit before June 30, next.

Treasury receipts up to October 15, were announced today as amounting to $988,000,000 and expenditures $850,000,000. General expenditures for the operation of the administrative branches of the government have dropped about $50,000,000 below last year, and have amounted to about $700,000,000 since the fiscal year began.

Government payments of account of both the railroads and the Shipping Board, have decreased since last year. The accounts of the Shipping Board show expenditures of only $14,000,000, a decrease of about $40,000,000. Payments to the railroads during that period have amounted to $25,000,000, about $5,000,000 less than last year. Customs revenues have been running about $60,000,000 ahead of last year's totals, and this accounts in part for larger receipts.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Oct. 18.—A sensational jump of sixteen points in National Biscuit to 244 featured the opening of the stock market today. The advance was influenced by rumors of a stock dividend declaration. The rest of the list was also active and buoyant. Mexican Petroleum was again taken in hand and run up 1½ to 227¼. Baldwin was 1¼ higher to a new high for the year, of 142. General Asphalt improved 1 point to 64¾. Steel common was fractionally higher at 110¼.

High priced specialties came into prominence during the forenoon, making advances from 3 to 15 points. United Fruit rose over 6 points to 162 and American Tobacco gained over 6 points to 167. Standard Oil of New Jersey rose over 4 points to 218¼ and Mexican Petroleum after an early reaction to 223½, rose to 229¼. Steel common held above 110 while Baldwin sold up to 142¾. National Biscuit extended its gain to 245½. The rails were fractionally higher.

The market turned weak in the afternoon. Steel common dropped nearly 2 points to 108⅛ and Crucible yielded nearly 3 points to 86⅝. National Biscuit reacted over 6 points to 239 and Mexican Petroleum, following its early advance of 233, dropped to 226. Baldwin declined 3 points to 139⅜ and the railroad stocks lost most of their early gains.

The market closed weak; government bonds unchanged; railway and other bonds weak.

Bobby is a very superior male of five summers, who treats the entire feminine world, including his three little sisters, with a scornful tolerance. Their arrived at Bobby's house one day twins—a little girl and a little boy. Bobby was taken up to see them. He looked them over and, in answer to his father's question as to how he liked them, replied, with a bored expression: "Oh, I like the boy, but I think we could have done without the girl."

Velvet Long Popular.

In the Middle ages Venice and Genoa learned the art of velvet making from the Arabs. Toward the year 1516 Lyons inherited the business. Europe, notably France, followed the lead of the courtiers of Francis I, Louis XIV, and La Pompadour. The world of the courts wore silk, satin and velvet stiff with gold and silver embroidery. Velvet was used by the rich for hangings and for upholstery. In Lyons, according to the latest figure, 20,000 looms were weaving velvet.

PELICAN A NAUGHTY BIRD

"Trout Hog" Is Charge Made Against Him by Professor of University of Illinois.

Excitement is rife in the wild animal community of the Yellowstone National park since the scandal about Mr. Pelican received public attention. The ducks are quacking about it, the squirrels are chattering it and the bobcats are scattering it broadcast in their shrill voices.

Throughout all the whispers and nudges of neighbors as he passes, Mr. Pelican maintains his stately mien, seemingly unconscious of the jibes of the multitude. His actions would indicate he still holds his valued place in the community.

His trouble started with the charge by Prof. Harry B. Ward, head of the department of zoology of the University of Illinois, that he is a "trout hog" and violator of all the tenets of good sportsmanship. Proof of these charges probably will mean that Mr. Pelican will become an outcast with everyone's door closed to him and everyone's hand against him.

Professor Ward is conducting an exhaustive investigation for the federal bureau of fisheries at Lake Yellowstone in Yellowstone National park as to the relation-ship between the pelican and the trout supply. His investigation, which has been progressing several weeks, will continue through the present season.

The flock of pelicans that live and breed on Lake Yellowstone numbers about 400. They "summer" aristocratically at the lake, feasting on the best the land affords, from spring until September, then go to their winter resorts along the Gulf of Mexico.

The bird diets almost exclusively on fish, and, so far as the Yellowstone and other Rocky mountain lakes and streams are concerned, this means exclusively on trout. He estimates that the 400 pelicans consume more trout than are taken during an entire season by sportsmen

The pelican is no respecter of size limits or open seasons, Professor Ward charges. He declared he had seen a platoon of 30 pelicans ranged across a stream in regular formation, preying on the trout as they swam up to spawn. Hitherto the stream had yielded trout eggs by the millions, but hatchery men this year could gather only a fraction of the normal amount.

The fact is granted that Mr. Pelican's home life is above reproach. He is a good provider, a good husband and father and is strictly monogamous. For the 400 birds in the lake flock, there are just 200 nests, one for each couple and one mate for each bird. There are no "triangles" in the Yellowstone "400."

If further investigations justify it, Professor Ward will ask the federal government to bar the pelican as summer visitors from the park.

When Margaret Davis, a fourteen-year-old Chicago schoolgirl, disappeared her parents were convinced she had either been kidnaped or murdered. Frantic search for a week failed to locate her until a chance clue led to the discovery that, attired as a boy, she was the "hired man" on a farm near Roselle, Ill., where she was known as Dick Davis.

Bereaved by the assassination of her fiance, Michael Collins, head of the Irish Free State, Miss Kitty Kiernan is to enter a convent and take the vows of a nun, according to her cousin, Francis O'Reilly, who has arrived in America.

Wealth from Street Dirt.

Thousands of dollars are reclaimed each year by London companies who do nothing but rake over millions of tons of waste, gathered in every nook and corner of the great city of London. Tin, copper, zinc, lead and sometimes silver are found in large quantities. Occasionally things of extreme value are found, due to the carelessness of people.

GUS HILL'S MINSTRELS COMING

Gus Hill's big minstrels, which is to be the attraction at the Opera House Saturday afternoon and night, boasts of more up-to-date features this year than have been presented before by this avalanche of burnt-cork tomfoolery and laughter. Critics have pronounced it the last word in minstrelsy, combining so many unusual novelties, inimitable settings, bits, jokes, singers, dancers, vaudeville headliners and exponents of simon-pure Ethopian wit and humor. Heading a company of fifty all-white gloom destroyers and purveyors of mirth and merriment, is Arthur Deming, a black-face comedian of acknowledged skill. Then will be found Harley Morton, Lee Edmonds, Fred McGee, and three score other singers, dancers and comedians. There will be a street parade.

CURRENT OFFERINGS AT THE THEATRES

"Love Never Dies," at Keeney's tonight, offers a dramatic story of rural life. Lloyd Hughes and Madge Bellamy are the featured players. Thursday Mae McAvoy in "A Virginia Courtship" a romance of Dixie with a modern twist.

Maurice Flynn in "Smiles Are Trumps," a smashing railroad story, is the attraction at the Auditorium tonight, also William Duncan in "Perils of the Yukon." Thursday Charles Hutchinson in "Go Get 'Em Hutch."

Opera House Thursday matinee and night Walter Scanlan in "Maytime in Erin." Saturday matinee and night Gus Hill's minstrels.

"Free Air," which comes to the Orpheum Theater today, is a picture adapted from the Sinclair Lewis story of the same name which ran serially in the Saturday Evening Post. Also Eddie Collins Musical Stock Revue in "Mademoiselle Henry."

Moral: Don't Invite Trouble.

I saw a delicate flower had grown up two feet high, between the horses' path and the wheel-track. An inch more to the right or left had sealed its fate, or an inch higher; and yet it lived to flourish as much as if it had a thousand acres of untrodden space around it, and never knew the danger it incurred. It did not borrow trouble, nor invite an evil fate by apprehending it.—Henry D. Thoreau.

Highly Valuable Metals.

The greater quality of copper or brass is its durability. The University of Pennsylvania sent out an archeological expedition which unearthed in Palestine cooking utensils and ornaments used by housewives 2,200 years ago. In the same way bronze and copper cooking utensils were brought over by the Franciscan monks. In a mission of the Southwest and in Mexico many of them are still being used.

ALECCA TRIED TO SCARE WIFE

As a Result He Will Pay a Fine of $15 and Spend Five Days in Jail—Had a Gun and Threatened to Shoot Himself—Other Cases in Police Court.

Tuesday evening a hurry call was received from 484 Delaware avenue, stating that Joe Alecca was running about the house waving a revolver and threatening to shoot himself. Officer Sime Wood was hurried to the scene and took Alecca in charge.

This morning Alecca was arraigned before Judge Schirick in police court charging with carrying a gun without a permit. His wife was present in court and told of the affair. It seems that Joe and his wife have been before Judge Schirick in conference a number of times and the judge had done his best to smooth the married path for the pair.

Joe is her second husband. She said that the revolver that Joe had was found by her former husband and was kept in a machine drawer at the house. Joe got it and cleaned it up and loaded it. That evening he picked up the baby with one arm and pressed the revolver against his temple with the other hand.

"I had no intentions of shooting myself, judge," said he.

"Of course not," replied Judge sarcastically, "it was simply a plan to scare your wife a little."

On Joe's plea of having the gun without the necessary permit, he was fined $15 and in addition sentenced to five days in jail. Joe said he was manager of the Lyric Theater on the Strand. His wife is employed in one of the factories here.

Judge Schirick advised her to see an attorney and start proceedings to obtain a separation from Joe.

Mrs. Alecca claims that Joe won't work. "Every time I tell him to go to work he goes crazy," she told the court.

Charles Discharged.

There was no appearance on the part of Mrs. Steward this morning to press the charge of assault in the third degree that she had lodged against Joe Charles, a veteran of the World War, and he was discharged.

Tigar is Freed.

Max Mones of Ann street also failed to appear and press the charge of assault in the third degree he had lodged against F. A. Tigar and Tigar was discharged. Tuesday Mones appeared very anxious to press the charge and a number of witnesses had been called to court this morning.

Three Drunks.

John Collins of Highland, formerly of Rosendale, was picked up helplessly drunk on Broadway Tuesday afternoon by Sergeant Hanley. This morning John was fined $5.

Frank Kranss, employed on the Rifton project, was also fined $3 for the same offense.

John Donohue, another laborer on the Rifton job, was picked up helplessly drunk. He also contributed $5 to the city treasury.

Origin of Music.

The origin of music is unknown. It has been said that speech and song are coeval. From several passages in the Old Testament it is evident that music was made use of at an early period, but probably without any regard to rhythm. The Greeks, who inherited the art from the Egyptians, were the first to reduce music to a system; but it was not until the introduction of Christianity into western Europe that marked signs of improvement took place, and not until the Fifteenth century that any rapid progress was made. The great distinction between music of the ancients and that of modern times lies in the peculiarity of the scales in which it is written. Melody was probably the sole characteristic of the music of the ancients, and it was not until the Seventh century that composition in harmony, either vocal or instrumental, came into use. It was supposed that the art of composition was first cultivated in Flanders. Harmony probably belongs exclusively to the music of the most civilized nations of modern times.—Seattle Daily Times.

Sheep Dog Was Too Faithful.

Keenness and lack of discipline on the part of one dog cost a famous sheep stealer his life. The animal had sorted out of a flock a number of fat sheep, and had driven them some miles to his master, who, for some reason, decided to abandon them. He rode away, calling on his dog to follow. The animal did so, reluctantly for a time, but eventually disappeared and turned up at his master's home with the stolen sheep just when the "arms of the law" were making a search.

Peacock's Coloring.

The brilliant colors of the tail feathers of the peacock, and the apparently self-luminous reds in the throat feathers of the humming bird, are not due to pigments, according to scientists. When one looks through a peacock's feathers one sees only a brown, due to the so-called melanin pigment. In all the iridescent feathers the barbules are flattened plates of brown, which therefore give the colors of thin films. The structure is so marked that an expert can pick out the iridescent feathers in the dark by the feel.

What Did He Mean?

Usually when an editor makes remarks about a public official it is easy to tell whether they are favorable or unfavorable. But the following paragraph in a South Carolina newspaper leaves the reader somewhat in doubt: "Some malicious person started a report on the streets that there was something the matter with Mayor Snipe's head. We are glad to announce that it is as sound as ever it was, and that there is nothing in it."—Youth's Companion.

The Stars in Their Spheres.

The sun is not unusually bright, for a star. Antares, Vega, Arcturus and Rigel, for instance, are each so bright that the noonday sun would look dull by comparison. Every star, in its cycle of life from nebula to nebula, rises in brightness to a certain intensity, then declines. The earth never was incandescent in the sense the sun is; it is too small. The sun can never hope to rival Betelgeux, for it is the merest pinpoint beside that huge sphere.

Beauty Everywhere.

Wherever snow falls or water flows or birds fly, wherever day and night meet in twilight, wherever the blue heaven is hung by clouds or sown with stars, wherever are forms with transparent boundaries, wherever are outlets into celestial space . . . there is beauty, plenteous as rain, shed for thee, and though thou shouldst walk the world over, thou shalt not be able to find a condition inopportune or ignoble.—Emerson.

Woman Has "Some" Job.

The business man who thinks he has real problems is "kidding" himself. If he doubt this, he should consult his wife about problems that really are problems—planning meals, keeping up with the fashions, and running the home to suit as many different tastes as there are members of the family.—Exchange.
